Beef Ceiling Sets Georgia Top At $18.60

Fair Share for Everyone
Is OPA Aim; 4-H Cattle
Exempted Under Ruling

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(UP)—The Office of Price Administration tonight formally established price ceilings on live cattle ranging from $17.25 to $18.60 a hundredweight, effective tomorrow, in a twin drive to eliminate black markets and end the price squeeze on wholesale and retail dealers.

Most of Georgia falls in Zone 24, with a ceiling set at $18.60. Western Georgia, however, is in Zone 23, where the price is $18.45. The on-the-hoof prices, ordered several weeks ago by Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, will be cut by 50 cents all along the line on July 2.

OPA said it has established an "over-riding ceiling" at 10 market centers and in 24 market towns which will be the legal limit for the sale of cattle and calves regardless of choice, good, or commercial grade. Animals sold for breeding or commercial purposes and those sold by members of the 4-H Clubs or other recognized farm youth organizations are exempt.

In addition, OPA ordered: 1. Establishment of a "dove compliance" system under which slaughterers will be limited in the total amount they may pay in buying cattle during a monthly accounting period.

2. A maximum limit, or a percentage, to be determined later, on the good and choice cattle a slaughterer may kill during the accounting period. Officials said the over-riding price would assure a profit to wholesalers and retailers, many of whom have been forced to buy at prices higher than their own sale price under previously established wholesale and retail ceilings. It also will protect them from being outbid for choice grades by "any unscrupulous operator" who had purchased cattle at prices higher than those permitted by the previous order, they said.

Coupled with tighter restrictions on meat rationing, OPA said, the new ceilings should "give greater assurance to each housewife that she will receive her fair share of all grades of beef, including the top grades, at fair prices." The prices range from $17.25 in Zone 7—all of Texas except Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso and San Antonio—to $18.60 at the Spokane, Wash., market center and in four zones comprising the west coast and the Atlantic seaboard.

1,200 Bombers Hit Ruhr; RAF Swarms On Berlin

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 28.—(P)—A crushing tide of Allied air power rolled over Germany yesterday with nearly 2,000 war planes from Britain, including more than 1,200 bombers, slashing at the German Ruhr industrial region by daylight and RAF bombers were reported heading for Berlin at night.

The German radio warned that enemy bombers were approaching Brandenburg province, indicating the refugee-packed German capital was a target for the second successive night. Mosquitoes hurled two-ton blockbusters on Berlin Saturday night. More than 6,000 tons of bombs were dropped on the Reich in the daylight attacks.

Clouds obscured some of the targets but visual bombing with good results was reported on the sprawling Hohenbuehler yards which have a daily capacity of 9,000 cars and the Rheinhausen rail-bridge spanning the Rhine near Duisburg.

Four bridges, including the Ludendorff rail bridge over the Rhine at Romagen, were attacked through dense clouds by medium and light bombers of the U. S. Ninth Air Force, based on the Continent.

Operations of the Second Tactical Air Force, also based on the Continent, were held to a mini-

U. S. First Army Drives 2 Miles Toward Westwall

PARIS, Monday, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The U. S. First Army has opened a new drive on the Germans' westwall in a bitter, predawn blizzard, slugging two miles east to within five miles of the Reich along the Belgian route over which the Germans sped in their winter counteroffensive 44 days ago. Simultaneously, the U. S. Third Army, rubbing out some of the last rearguards in northern Luxembourg, swung abruptly four miles northeast into Belgium, hard on the First's south flank. Thus these two veteran American armies presented a solid 40-mile front within artillery range of the westwall.

An ominous lull settled over the remainder of the snow-locked western front except in southern Alsace, where French and American forces tightened a clamp around Colmar—enemy citadel—and drove to within four miles of the Rhine.

Patrols lunged out aggressively along the U. S. Seventh Army front in northern Alsace and along the Roer on the U. S. Ninth and British Second Army fronts at the gateway to the Ruhr valley, where the British now were drawn up along the Roer at a number of places.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army sprang a surprise attack at 4 a. m. in a blizzard which heaped snowdrifts seven feet high. In the early hours the First overwhelmed startled garrisons of four towns northeast of St. Vith. The opening of the First Army's drive came 43 days after Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt broke through the Ardennes in his December offensive.

Due east of St. Vith the Seventh Armored Division dug a half mile into a thick fir forest some three miles from the border, bearding the Germans in their woods positions to which they had retreated after losing St. Vith.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army, meanwhile, slashed four miles northward, cutting in a mile from the Belgian-German border a few miles southeast of St. Vith. In the advance the Belgian town of Maspelt, four miles southeast of St. Vith, was overrun.

The Third Army in Belgium was nowhere farther than two miles from the border and along the Luxembourg front was at the Our river on the border or no more than two and a half miles away.

At least four more towns in the two countries were liberated, including Burg-Reuland, six miles northwest of St. Vith.

Those who wish to hear and see Tommy Tucker broadcast are requested to be in their seats at the auditorium by 8 p. m. tomorrow, to hear a 30-minute program of preliminary music which will precede the airing of the music at 8:30 p. m.

Leaders of the appeal yesterday were still expressing gratitude to the faculty and students of Boys' High school, for their gracious generosity in transferring graduation exercises to the new auditorium.

Russians Smash 16 Miles In Sweep Toward Berlin

Memel Captured In New Offensive

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Red Army in a 16-mile advance rolled to within 109 miles east of Berlin yesterday, completely conquered the rich Dabrowa coal fields and industries of southern Silesia with the capture of Katowice and Beuthen, and seized the long-surrounded Baltic port of Memel in a new northern offensive.

Premier-Marshals Stalin announced clearance of the enemy from southern German-Polish Silesia areas that produced one-fifth of the German war machine's coal supply, and the activation of an Eight-Soviet Army in the north brought the total to perhaps 4,000,000 Russians now engaged in the gigantic winter offensive.

On the 17th day of the big push Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's White Russian Army overran 400 more western Polish localities beyond encircled Poznan, last big Polish city in German hands, and deployed on an 80-mile arc facing straight toward Berlin.

MEMEL COSTLY TO NAZIS
In Lithuania the enemy lost on the approaches to Memel 1,600 men and 37 tanks and self-propelled guns, the supplement to the nightly communiqué stated. German losses in East Prussia were given as 26 tanks, 19 planes, 58 field guns, 178 machineguns and 130 motor vehicles captured and 700 men taken prisoners. The supplement, continuing listing of German equipment taken, said that near Poznan 72 field guns were captured, in addition to 35 locomotives and 260 railway cars and 18 complete trains loaded with war materials.

Zhukov's central columns threatening to cross momentarily in Brandenburg, Berlin's home province, captured Pniew, on the Warsaw-Berlin motor road 27 miles west of besieged Poznan and 109 miles due east of Berlin. In the northwest they reached the pre-war German-Polish frontier at a new point by capturing Czarnkow, 126 miles northwest of Berlin and 90 miles southwest of Stettin, German Baltic port. At the southern end of the arc the Russians rolled through Lezno, a 10-day highway junction close to the German frontier and 130 miles from Berlin.

SPARS AT OBRA
Berlin dispatches said Soviet spearheads, however, had reached the Obra river frontier 21 miles west of captured Opalenica, 16 miles southeast of Pniew. That would put the Russians only 95 miles from the German capital.

While Zhukov's troops drove directly on Berlin on the shortest route to the Nazi capital, other Soviet units spread out on the south and to the north to secure the flanks.

In the north the Russians drove 29 miles into the Polish corridor northwest of Bydgoszcz, capturing 20 miles to the southwest, and 10 miles from the Danzig-Berlin trunk railway. At Sepolno the Russians were 74 miles southwest of Danzig.

Seizing Lobzenica, 30 miles west-northwest of Bydgoszcz, another column rolled to within three miles of the Pomeranian frontier and to within 110 miles east of Stettin. These troops were outflanking on the north and the German rail center of Schneidemuhl, 20 miles to the southwest, and Berlin said that Schneidemuhl already was under Soviet assault.

Other Russian troops had crossed into the Polish corridor from the east, jerking the lower reaches of the Vistula river below captured Chelmno, 25 miles northeast of Bydgoszcz. In this section Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian troops also cleared the east bank of the Vistula on an eight-mile stretch below the city of Grudziadz.

Among the places taken was Rudnik, four miles south of Grudziadz, an important river crossing town. Northwest of Allenstein, 62 miles south of Königsberg, the Russians for the second straight day repulsed assaults by large German infantry and tank forces attempting to break through to the west, the Soviet communiqué said.

Moscow radio said that 250,000 Germans were trapped in East Prussia, and that the enemy had lost a total of 40 other divisions since the Russians launched their winter offensive. "The material lost would equip an entire army," the broadcast said.

Berlin said that the Russians had broken into the outskirts of Königsberg, and there were reports that the Germans already were dynamiting installations in the city amidst a violent Soviet artillery barrage.

Are Promised Atlanta

Atlanta are assured of two more milder days, according to the forecast by L. F. Thomas, weatherman at the municipal airport. He says today and tomorrow will be cloudy and cooler, with a temperature range between a high of 61 degrees and a low of 44. Yesterday the high temperature was 60 degrees and the low was 42.

Norway Flight Forecast As Hitler, Quisling Talk

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Adolf Hitler has held a full-dress conference with Norwegian Leader Vidkun Quisling, the German DNB agency announced today, and diplomatic quarters here believed Hitler had admitted that Germany must abandon Norwegian Nazis to their fate.

DNB said that Hitler had reaffirmed a promise made by Josef Terboven, Nazi overlord in Norway, in September, 1943, to "restore full freedom and independence to Norway after the victorious end of the struggle for Europe's destiny."

Hitler and Quisling had a "cordial talk in an atmosphere of full confidence," DNB said, and "full and sincere agreement was achieved concerning all problems of common interests to Germany and Norway."

However, signs of German withdrawal from Norway had been evident for some time and it has been reliably reported that Col. Gen. Lothar Rendulic, German commander in chief, had been called to the eastern front, leaving a minor commander, one Gen. Blohme, in command.

It was believed here that Blohme had been ordered to do his best to prevent an uprising or to wipe out any parties of Norwegian patriots or other Allied parachutists who might try to land in Norway. In any revolt or landing, Quisling would be the first to die.

It has been reported recently that Quisling was depressed and fearful of his fate, with the Russian armies rolling toward Berlin and the Allied armies pressing from the west.

Hitler was believed to have told him that only a minimum force of German troops could be maintained in Norway. Some German troops withdrawn from Norway already have been reported on the western front, including the Sixth SS mountain division.

The importance of the Hitler-Quisling conference was made clear by the announcement that among those attending were German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hans Heinrich Lammers, chief of Hitler's chancellery; Martin Bormann, chief of the Nazi party chancellery, and Terboven.

Shortly before the broadcast, Stockholm heard unconfirmed reports that Allied planes—whether British, American or Russian—had been heavily bombed the Narvik area on the Norwegian coast by enemy artillery and machineguns. The trucks were welcomed by an elaborate Chinese-American ceremony.

WANTING, China, Jan. 28.—(P)—The first Allied convoy, numbering more than 100 vehicles, arrived at this border town today after crunching over freshly cleared Japanese mine fields and winding through Burmese valleys controlled yesterday by enemy artillery and machineguns. Bound for Kunming, the trucks were welcomed by an elaborate Chinese-American ceremony.

Let us name this road after Gen. Joseph Stilwell, in memory of his distinctive contribution and of the signal part Allied and Chinese troops under his command played in building the India-China land route, Chiang said.

"To the militarists of Japan," China's leader said, "it will be an omen of defeat. For generations to come China will pay reverence to the memory of all those who gave their lives for this immortal deed. Every Chinese will be grateful, as I am, to the gallant officers and men of our Allies, Americans, British and Indian, for their great and glorious share in the accomplishment of this feat of arms."

"No Individual Star," Is Stilwell's Reply
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(P)—Gen. Stilwell said today, "There is no individual star on the team" that cut through the new Leda road from India to China.

Manila Push In 36 Miles; Tokyo Is Hit

Angeles, 4 Airfields
Bagged, MacArthur
Moves on San Fernando

By The Associated Press.
American liberation forces, pressing their offensive on Luzon island, have pushed through Angeles, strategic road junction, and are nearing San Fernando, capital of Pampanga Province and gateway to Manila, which lies 36 air miles southward.

Gen. MacArthur reported late yesterday that parallel American columns, headed for the capital of the Philippines, seized Angeles and four nearby airfields while patrols reached Mexico, three miles northeast of San Fernando.

On the northern front the town of Rosario was taken and the Americans there were within a half mile of an important road junction. One road branch twists through the Benguet mountains to Baguio. The Japanese defenders in that sector, a division and a brigade, "have been practically decimated," Gen. MacArthur said. He added "the enemy has been forced to move his northern reserves from the Baguio sector to supplement the remnants of his forces guarding the approaches to the north."

BLOODY SAN MANUEL
Associated Press Correspondent Dean Scheider, with the 25th Division at San Manuel, said the Americans yesterday bested a fanatical counterattack, backed by tanks and artillery, in "perhaps the toughest localized action of the Luzon campaign."

He estimated the five-day fight for San Manuel had cost the enemy 800 dead and possibly 50 light and medium tanks destroyed. The general disclosed that the Americans captured tremendous depots of quartermaster, signal, ordnance and air technical supplies in the Clark Field sector. The bag included more than 200 new aircraft engines, much ammunition and food and 40 pieces of artillery.

In the Second Corps front, the general said, 71 tanks of the Japanese Second Armored Division have been destroyed.

TOJO HOWLS "HIT"
American airmen continued to blast Corregidor Island, Bataan peninsula and Subic bay. They also lashed Cavite.

The fliers again started land-slides in Balete pass, gateway to the Cagayan valley, northeast Luzon, where the Japanese supposedly have strong forces.

American Superfortresses, continuing the aerial offensive against the Japanese homeland, were reported by the Tokyo radio to have hit the capital city area eight times over the weekend.

Radio Tokyo, in broadcasts unconfirmed by American quarters, said eight B-29s, flying singly, visited the Tokyo area between Saturday night and yesterday morning, Japanese time. It acknowledged the attack.

'STILWELL ROAD' IS CHINA LIFELINE

Chiang Honors Our 'Uncle Joe' By Naming Leda Road for General

CHUNGKING, Jan. 28.—(P)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer and U. S. Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley hailed the breaking of the land blockade to China at ceremonies tonight marking the opening of the Leda-Burma road, which the generalissimo suggested be renamed in honor of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell.

Immediately accepting the suggestion, Maj. Gen. Hurley thanked Chiang "for the honor he has just conferred upon America by naming the land route into China in honor of Stilwell, former commander of American forces in the China-Burma-India theater and now head of all American ground forces."

In a mutual broadcasting system talk directed to the United States, Chiang said completion of the road, which even in peacetime "would be an extraordinary achievement," had "broken the siege of China."

"Let us name this road after Gen. Joseph Stilwell, in memory of his distinctive contribution and of the signal part Allied and Chinese troops under his command played in building the India-China land route, Chiang said.

3 More Georgians Killed; 2 Are Missing, 2 Wounded

Three more Georgians have been killed in action, two are missing, and two have been wounded, according to War Department messages to their families.

Verna L. McCord.

Killed:

LT. VERN A LEE McCORD, 27, of McDonough and Atlanta, was killed in action in Belgium Dec. 22, the War Department has notified his mother, Mrs. J. T. Hazel, of Port Wentworth.

A graduate of Tech High, he was employed by Atlantic Steel Company prior to entering the service in January, 1940. Lt. McCord received his training at Camp Jackson, S. C., and his officer's commission at Fort Benning, Ga. Since going overseas in May, 1944, he was promoted to company commander of an armored infantry regiment.

Besides his mother, survivors include a brother, David T. McCord, of the Naval Training Center, Bainbridge, Md.; and a sister, Mrs. R. E. Parrott, of College Park.

SGT. OSCAR RAYMOND HUGGINS, 23, of the infantry, was killed in action on Leyte Island Dec. 9, the War Department has notified his wife, the former Miss Ruby Mae Carson, of Boulevard drive, S. E.

A graduate of Bass Junior High school, Sgt. Huggins was employed as a civilian worker at the Conley Depot prior to his induction September, 1942. He also assisted his father in running a stand at the Southeastern Fair each year, and was known to thousands of fair customers as "Slim."

He received his training at Camp Livingston, La., and went overseas in December, 1943.

Survivors, in addition to his wife, include a baby daughter, Myrlin Huggins; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Huggins, of Eastland Heights; five brothers, C. E. Jr., Melton C., Walter W., Charles S., and Alton W. Huggins, of Camp Wheeler, and a sister, Miss Catherine E. Huggins.

CPL. EDWARD L. BRANNON, 24, Tank Destroyer Division, was killed in action Dec. 29 in Belgium, the War Department has notified his mother, Mrs. Irene Tucker, of 283 Boulevard, S. E.

Memorial services will be held Sunday, Feb. 4, at Immanuel Baptist church, with the Rev. Ben Stone officiating.

In the service since September, 1940, he received his training at Fort Benning and Camp Gordon, Ga., and went overseas in 1943. He was in the invasion of Normandy and the breakthrough at St. Lo. He was formerly employed by the Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by a brother, Pvt. James F. Brannon, who is now home from overseas.

Missing:

PFC. CARLTON L. BARRS, tank battalion, has been missing in action in Luxembourg since Dec. 18, the War Department has notified his wife, Mrs. Betty Barrs, of 3344 Stewart avenue, Hapeville.

Entering the service in 1942, he left for overseas last September. A native of Dublin, he has two children, Steve and Linda Barrs. His mother, Mrs. F. E. Marquis, resides in Morgan City, La.

PVT. H. W. CORLEY, infantry, husband of Mrs. Pressley Corley, of Thomaston, has been reported missing in action in France since Jan. 3. The son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Corley, he entered the service on May 28, 1944.

Wounded:

PVT. REED W. COUCH, 27, of the infantry, was wounded in action Dec. 5 on Leyte and is now in a hospital in Dutch New Guinea, the War Department has notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Couch, of 389 Windsor street, S. W., formerly of Winston.

In the service four years, he has been overseas a year.

PVT. JOHN F. VALENTINE, Armored Infantry, husband of Mrs. Mildred Wise Valentine, of Thomaston, was wounded in action Nov. 19 in France.

While before he was in a hospital in England, he gave his blood to save the life of a dying buddy. Entering the service in November, 1940, he left for overseas in August, 1944. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Valentine, of Camden.

New Industries Want To Place Plants in Georgia

Four different types of industry, including a tire and shoe factory, are already seeking information as to labor supply, living conditions, types of raw materials available—by a staff supervised by Prof. H. E. Dennison of Georgia Tech, they form a store of information from which the industry panel derives the data sought by industries considering location of plants in Georgia, Director Cram said.

The studies already made at Tech show that some communities are better fitted to sustain wood processing plants because of the nearness of particular kinds of wood, while others are better equipped to maintain food manufacturing, or other types of industry.

Upon completion of all of the questionnaires, the industry panel by local communities and their study by Prof. Dennison's staff, the panel is expected to possess perhaps the most complete fund of industrial information anywhere in the country.

The industry panel membership includes Robert Strickland, chairman, and Wiley Moore, both of Atlanta, and Mayor Charles L. Bowden, of Macon.

Four more projects in the $500,000 building fund campaign conducted by the Atlanta Young Women's Christian Association have been taken this week, it has been announced by Erle Cooke, one of three co-chairmen of the civic project.

A national chain store donated $1,200 for a dormitory room; three members of one family have given $1,375 in memory of a departed relative; another project is for a $1,200 dormitory room and the fund was given by a married couple; a fourth room is being provided by a local manufacturing firm.

Previously, a family has taken a $50,000 floor of the residence section for the central building; a corporation has given $10,000 for the business girls' lounge; an individual has provided $5,000 for a classroom; $1,200 has come from a married couple for a dormitory room, and an individual has donated $500 for a fireplace.

Among the teams which will head the 200 volunteer workers in the men's teams when the public campaign opens Feb. 7 are: Mose C. Turman, Frank J. Roland, Ted C. Lanier, Frank Garmon, James W. Morton Jr., J. M. Harrell, Richard P. Fraser, Frank Ingram, Glenn Touchton, Granger Hansell, Francis G. Jones Jr., Cecil Hester, T. I. Miller, Cecil H. Rawlins, Weaver Marr, T. Stanley Perry, George H. McWhirter, Lon S. Shealy, J. R. Chesire, Otis Paul C. Ausley, Sam Weyman, Huie Lamb, Joseph L. Morris, L. M. Clark, Thomas L. Camp, Ralph R. Quillian and Martin L. Johnson.

A total of 916 volunteer workers already have been enlisted for the public subscription campaign, it was announced at campaign headquarters, and this week 500 additional workers will be added to the volunteer roster.

Leaders are unanimous in declaring "busy men and women must do the job of reaching the public," and said civic-minded Atlantans can still find work to do in the campaign.

The campaign for the Phyllis Wheatley branch (Negro) begins today. The opening day of this campaign will be observed in the churches where clergymen are bringing the fund-raising effort to the attention of their parishioners. This afternoon the campaign actually will get under way with a volunteer workers' meeting at 4 p. m. at the Butler street branch of the Y. M. C. A. More than 400 volunteer workers will participate in this campaign.

Farm Census

SPARTA, Ga., Jan. 28.—A group of enumerators are now taking the farm census in Hancock county as called for by the government recently.

ALL THIS AND HEAVEN, TOO!—No, that's not a mirage—it's real, bona fide meat, stored in one of the huge refrigerators in the culinary department at the federal penitentiary. Here Principal Steward George W. Sibbald inspects some of the bacon, lunch meats, and sausage manufactured at the prison slaughterhouse and stored at the prison for future use by the inmates.

meat products manufactured at the prison slaughterhouse, plus some other stores which Sibbald buys when they are available.

On the fourth side of the large central room is the prison dining room, which seats 1,500 men. The 2,100 inmates eat in two shifts at each meal. All of them have three meals each day, and those who work 12 hours daily in the industrial plant receive a fourth meal when they get off work.

BASEMENT STORAGE

In the basement, below the main plant, is the vegetable preparation department, the cannery, the dishwashing unit and the ice cream room. Tons of fresh vegetables are packed in sacks and barrels and stored in the refrigerated storerooms on this floor.

The culinary department is operated by 185 inmates, working under the direction of Sibbald and his civilian staff of seven men. About half the prisoners serve as waiters in the dining room, while the rest are cooks, bakers or baker helpers, butchers, bread and cake men, vegetable preparation men, kitchen cleaners, pot washers, storeroom or ice cream room workers and clerks in the steward's office. Sibbald rewards the men who qualify as cooks by giving them a distinctive uniform as first or second cooks.

In addition to maintaining the prison culinary department, these men are learning trades which they can follow when they leave prison at the end of their terms. Many former Atlanta inmates are now serving as culinary workers on the ships of the Merchant Marine and others have gone into hotels and restaurants.

U. S. Jet Planes Undergo Rigors Of Arctic Flying

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Army's jet propulsion planes are undergoing arctic tests in Alaska. The jet plane had its first secret tests under the hot, sandy conditions of a desert, at Muroc, Cal.

The disclosure by an official Army publication, the magazine Air Force, of the trials of jet planes in the extreme cold of Alaska is interesting in view of a recent dispatch from Moscow, which reported that a Red Air Force engineer had spent six months in the United States studying jet planes.

Children's Program To Feature Stories

"Books—Bring Adventure!" an entirely new type of children's radio program produced by the Association of Junior Leagues of America, Inc., starts a 12-week run Saturday at 10:30 a. m. over WAGA.

The new 15-minute spot will be presented by the Junior League and is designed to stimulate children's interest in good books through the dramatization of adventure stories laid in various parts of the world. The listening audience will be introduced to children of their own ages in England, Belgium, Holland, Canada, Guinea, Iceland, Russia, China, Hungary and other countries, who will play leading roles in the 12 different tales.

First in the series will be "Mischief in Fes," a story of the djinn, of the magic and magic and evil doings in the Moroccan household of Mohammed Ali and his son.

Fulton Probation Office Must Expand, Says Etheridge

By CHRISTINE JONES

The Fulton county probation office must expand to meet the increase in crime which is expected when the war ends, according to Judge A. L. Etheridge, of the Fulton superior court, who heads the judges' committee on probation.

"The Fulton county probation office is now working in close cooperation with the state and federal veterans' service bureaus, the various veterans' organizations and the veterans' hospitals, all to the end that ex-servicemen who come to the probation office will have the most intelligent and scientific treatment legally permissible and available," he said.

Judge Etheridge pointed out many ex-servicemen have not adjusted themselves to civilian life and violated criminal laws.

"Good probation will offer an excellent method of rehabilitation," he added.

During the last 20 years, approximately 20,000 persons have been placed on probation in Fulton county—an average of 1,100 new cases a year for the past 10 years, the judge said. One-third of the probation cases have been abandonment cases, he added.

Judge Etheridge urged in his statement the need for more detailed presentence investigation—a study of the lawbreaker and his background—before sentences are imposed.

The freer use of presentence investigations, more highly trained probation supervisors and better support of probation would produce better results in probation, he explained.

"For obvious reasons detailed, accurate and readily available records must be kept," the judge said, "not only to disclose the full facts of each case, but also for study, because within these records, when properly read, lies a gold mine of information for use in the treatment of current and future criminal cases."

Judge Etheridge described probsouth of St. Vith and two miles west of the border in the deepest part of the bulge on the Third Army front.

A half mile south of Burg-Reuland infantry in a mile advance reached a point half a mile from the Our.

The Fifth Division on the south flank took the village of Wallehausen, a mile from the German frontier north of Diekirch.

Lt. Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny's French First Army was slowly developing a squeeze on the troublesome German Colmar-Mulhouse front south of Strasbourg.

The mop-up of Jébsheim left the French only two miles west of the Rhine-Rhone canal, which the Germans have incorporated into their stout defenses along the Rhine.

At Wickerschwiller they were on a canal connecting Colmar with the Rhine-Rhone waterway and a position to outflank the city on the east.

FRENCH TAKE VILLAGE
The French, fighting up 22 miles to the south, seized Cite Kullman, a village three miles north of Jébsheim, after heavy house-to-house fighting.

Seven miles northwest of Mulhouse the French drove the last snipers from the Cernay suburb of Gebelfort. Cernay has been the scene of some of the heaviest fighting on this front.

The lull on Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army front moved into its second day. The quiet was broken only by occasional small-arms fire and the clash of patrols.

To the northwest, the U. S. Third Army's 94th Division pushed another mile into Germany along the Moselle river valley, entering the outskirts of Sinz, four miles north of the Reich border and three miles east of the Luxembourg frontier.

Mayor of Breslau Put to Death as Coward
By The Associated Press.
The deputy mayor of Breslau, identified as Dr. Spielhagen, was executed as "a coward devoid of honor" yesterday by a squad of the volkssturm (people's army), said a Berlin broadcast reported by the FCC.

The execution was carried out in front of the Breslau city hall, said the broadcast directed to German army troops. It gave no details of events leading to the execution.

WLB Looks To Congress For New Prop

Labor Asked To Keep Feet on Ground During Board Crisis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(UP)

The War Labor Board, alarmed by potentialities of the Chicago federal court decision in the Montgomery Ward & Company seizure, looked to congress tonight to enforce peaceful settlement of all labor disputes and hoped meanwhile that labor will "keep its feet on the ground."

The decision invalidated government seizure of Ward properties on grounds that they are not war plants and raised the prospect that thousands of nonwar businesses dealing with labor through WLB directives will challenge the board's authority.

One WLB source said if that occurs labor might be provoked into work stoppages that would seriously impact war production.

WLB Chairman William H. Davis was represented as feeling that it has now become the duty of congress to underwrite the President's wartime right to take over any property—whether or not it is a war plant—to stave off a prospective national crisis.

He also feels that congress must define the board's powers by statute, the issue being whether the agency will settle all disputes or only those in war plants while the others are fought to a finish on a strike or lockout basis.

Some board members are portrayed as not optimistic that Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle will win a reversal of the Chicago edict. Biddle charted his course today in conferences with his assistants.

The United Press was informed that he probably will seek a writ of certiorari in the seventh circuit court of appeals at Chicago this week so the case can be taken direct to the supreme court for decision.

It is doubtful that congress will act before the high tribunal has reviewed the issues, and it is conjectured how the legislators would react if the court sustained the Chicago decree. The original seizure of Ward property last year caused such a congressional furor that there was talk of legislating the WLB out of existence.

Davis warned, while the Ward case was being argued, that nothing must endanger labor-management's voluntary no-strike, no-lockout pledge for the duration.

He said "there is no substitute for reason in this greatest area of conflict in American life."

He is understood to feel that, as a result of the Chicago decision, the question now is whether to substitute a little force to keep the voluntary system operative until the war ends, or risk impairment of the nation's industrial efficiency by again permitting labor and industry to resort to force to settle their differences.

Motorist, 75, Struck, Injured
Wallace S. Tignor, 75, of 551 Oakland avenue, S. E., is in a serious condition at Grady hospital as the result of an accident at Crew street and Georgia avenue, S. W., according to a report made by Radio Patrolmen K. A. Wooster and J. T. Bowen. Tignor, the hospital reports, is suffering from head injuries and several broken ribs.

According to the police, Tignor, after going to church last night, drove his automobile to a drug store near Crew street and Georgia avenue. He went inside for a few minutes and when he returned to get into his car an automobile of which the driver was John S. Pease, of an Ormond street, S. E., address, ran over him and knocked him down, the police report alleges.

Wooster and Bowen, who answered the call for aid, had Tignor removed to the hospital and then booked Pease, a Pullman conductor, on a charge of reckless driving accident.

9 More Soldiers Given Sentences
PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A U. S. general court-martial trying war crimes sentenced nine more enlisted men today to prison terms ranging from 10 to 15 years.

Those sentenced were James T. Donoghue, 30, Marmel, Ill.; T/S Raymond R. D. Durham, 33, West Frankfort, Ill.; Sgt. John Landers, 29, of 288 Dwight street extension, Springfield, Mass.; Sgt. Sylvester J. Longon, 32, Chicago; Pfc. John P. Masterson, 32, Boone, Iowa; Pfc. Chester A. Sawyer Jr., 34, of 37 Winthrop street, Waltham, Mass.; and Pfc. Edmund E. Swearingen, 28, Wellsboro, Ohio, and Sgt. Oscar J. Jaimet, 42, Oswatimie, Kas.

Longon, Masterson and Sawyer were sentenced to 10 years. All the others received 15-year sentences.

The group was convicted of looting trains of cigarettes and other Army supplies valued at hundreds of thousands of francs and selling them on the black market.

Truman To Fly to Rites
KANSAS CITY, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Star, in a special dispatch from its Washington correspondent, said tonight that Vice President Harry Truman would fly from Washington to Kansas City in an Army bomber tomorrow to attend the funeral of Tom Pendergast, former Democratic boss who helped Truman get his start in politics.

Combat Ace Signs Up At Bell

When the famed Flying Fortress Yankee Doodle limped back from Palermo with its tail half shot off and one engine knocked out, Sgt. Anderson McDonald, of College Park, was aboard.

He's now the 20,000th trainee to join up with the Bell Bomber outfit.

"That day over Sicily," he recalled, "a bunch of German fighters, 200 or more, attacked us. Our tail gunner fell into the sea and was of course lost. The ball turret gunner had his leg torn off, the top turret gunner was hit in the head with shrapnel—and I was scared stiff."

"Nobody will ever know how the pilot managed to get us back. Mechanics looked at the wreck of the plane he crash-landed and said it was impossible to have flown it!"

In the landing of the Yankee Doodle, McDonald sustained leg and back injuries which led to his discharge on last Christmas Day. He knew right then he was heading for the Bell Bomber plant.

"I know what those guys are going through," declared the onetime radioman-gunner, "and I at least want to help build some planes for them." The plant's training department will ready him for an electrical job, because his injuries restrict him to light work.

Veteran of 40 missions out of Africa and 10 out of England, this Yankee Doodle boy participated in the first Allied sweep over Germany, and was Gen. Doolittle's radioman when Rome was bombed for the first time.

Three German planes came to a violent end at McDonald's hands—two Messerschmitts and one Focke-Wulf. He has the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with nine Oak Leaf Clusters.

Married to the former Miss Ilda Pearl, of East Point, he has one child—five-year-old Myrna. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McDonald, of College Park.

German Swipe Atlantan's Liquor
The Nazis don't overlook whisky in their looting of the GIs, according to a letter from Lt. A. O. Franklin, with the cavalry in Belgium, to his parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Franklin, of 683 Bonaventure avenue.

"For New Year's Eve," he stated, "I bought two bottles of cognac for my men, and as they enjoyed it, I was thinking of my good American liquor some Kraut was lapping up."

Franklin, who seems to have been captured by the Germans for a brief period and to have escaped, said that the Krauts took a ham-mock, a kodak, an overcoat and all his dress uniforms in addition to the liquor.

"My unit," he continued, "and my troops as well as my platoon were the heroes of a 10-day battle for which we will receive an Army citation. Our action saved many units from destruction and will be always mentioned when this phase of the war is discussed."

DESIGNATED BY DESTINY

Russia's Gen. Zhukov May Besiege Berlin

MOSCOW, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Destiny may make Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, hero of Moscow and Stalingrad, the man to lay siege to Berlin, now only some 100 miles ahead of his battering ram armies.

Zhukov commanded the Red army men who saved Moscow—1,000 miles from Berlin—in the fall of 1941. He co-ordinated three army fronts which saved Stalingrad—1,380 miles from Berlin—in 1942-43.

The 50-year-old marshal now is commander-in-chief of the Red army, second only to Stalin.

When foreign correspondents visited the battlefield west of Moscow after Hitler's drive on Moscow had been stopped, they saw Zhukov for a few moments.

"Who is that?" one asked. "A general named Zhukov—you'll hear a lot about him before the war is over," was the reply.

HITS PAST POZNAN
Now Zhukov is actively commanding the First White Russian front striking beyond Poznan on the shortest road to Berlin.

This strategy of Zhukov's breakthrough near Poznan, last great Polish bastion between Warsaw and the Reich, was told today by Pravda Correspondent Yakov Makarenko.

Zhukov drew up in Gniezno, 28 miles northeast of Poznan, and Krzeszina, 26 miles southeast of the city.

From Gniezno he sent a large storm group southward to a point midway between Gniezno and Wrzesnia. From Wrzesnia a similar group was sent northward.

Good highways and railways lead into Poznan from Gniezno and Wrzesnia, and the Germans apparently believed Zhukov would move down them.

Instead, Zhukov struck at the city from his position midway between the two cities.

A few hours after he opened this attack, he began two huge outflanking movements, moving tanks and motorized infantry northwestward from Gniezno and southwestward from Wrzesnia. The central assault on Poznan from the east was stepped up at the same time.

The Pravda correspondent said the Germans, believing Zhukov was throwing everything against the city, moved in closer to Poznan. The Nazis were particularly anxious to defend Poznan from the east, he added, because of the large aviation works at Swarzedz five miles from the city. It produced many Focke-Wulfs, and the Germans had not had time to move much of its equipment.

But defense of this airplane center complicated the defense of Poznan, Makarenko continued, and Stalin announced last night that Poznan had been surrounded.

Another Russian correspondent said 292 planes were captured at the Focke-Wulf factory, along with several trains piled high with ammunition, bombs, food, and other military supplies.

LIKE THESE PUPS?—Here are four dogs which would enhance any Fulton county farm. They'd bark at visitors, keep watch over night. They aren't city dogs, the rattle of street cars frightens them. But they are available for "adoption" if the would-be owners prove to Patrolman Ellis Whatley, of 401 South Randall street, East Point, that they'll be good and kind to the pups.

Officer, Too Kind To Destroy Stray Pups, Takes 'Em Home

"Cinders" is a shy little wire-haired terrier—about as shy as a wild rabbit. She eats out of her master's hand, but if he turns the hand over to pat her on the head, she runs away and hides. Despite her timidity, Cinders has her responsibility—to her four puppies—and she does well by them. One of the pups is a little white female, just like Cinders, shy and almost wild. Her name is "Scardie Cat." Then there is "Big Boy" and "The Runt" and "Sally Ann."

There was a fifth one, but she died from exposure. Exposure, cold and rain, not enough food. Cinders and her pups were found by the pile back of the railroad dump in East Point about two months ago. (Hence, her name). She was all tangled up in hay wire when two night-duty policemen found her. They returned to police headquarters, told Patrolman Ellis Whatley about the puppies and dog, for they know Whatley's humanitarian side.

HOME FOUND

Whatley found a box, gave it to the other officers, told them to go back and get the dogs and take them to his home, 401 S. Randall street. East Point has no dog pound so when policemen are called to quiet a dog "disturbance" their general procedure is to "destroy" the animal.

Pistol-packing, night desk-man, Whatley has answered many such calls. He arrives on the scene of the dog disturbance, points the muzzle of his pistol to the sky, fires twice. Then he tucks the pup under his arm and takes it to his wife at her home.

"I don't like to kill dogs," gentle, 54, Whatley explains. He has another way of disposing of them. He finds a home for the stray animals, he and his wife. Together they have placed more than 100 dogs since he joined the force in 1929. Yet their backyard still looks like a kennel with its present population of seven grown dogs and four puppies.

LIFE IN A DUMP

Cinders' story is vague prior to her appearance in the darkening woods. But Whatley has watched her and he figures she probably spent most of her life around the old dump. He hopes to find a home for Cinders and her puppies, if possible on a farm, because he knows the dogs would be happier in the country. The rattle of street cars frightens them. They dislike being cooped up in a little dog trot. They are the kind of dog any farmer would welcome. They wouldn't be afraid on the farm they'd bark at visitors, keep watch over night.

Whatley feeds his dogs scraps the butchers all over East Point save for him. He also buys prepared biscuits and other dog food. It costs a little, but he and Mrs. Whatley get a big kick out of it. "Some folks tell me I let my sentiment run away with my better judgment," the dog lover said. "But we don't have any children and I'd rather keep the poor fellows."

MacArthur Braves Jap Shelling

WITH 37TH DIVISION AT SAN MANUEL, Luzon, Jan. 27. (Delayed)—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur completed a visit of five Luzon divisional fronts by appearing unexpectedly in this wrecked village in the midst of the third day of vicious house-to-house battling.

The general and his five-star jeep rolled into the ruined main street of San Manuel a half hour after American forces had been pinned down by heavy mortar and artillery fire from the wooded areas of adjacent hills, from the guns of buried tanks made into stout pillboxes as well as machineguns and small arms.

The battle still flamed intensely as MacArthur alighted and discussed the situation with Maj. Gen. Charles L. Mullins, of Broken Bow, Neb., divisional commander. MacArthur declined a steel helmet and continued to wear his familiar braided cap. He stood upright in the center of the street to survey the battle lines while shells crashed a few hundred yards away.

Litter bearers raced past the general carrying newly wounded men. MacArthur turned to Cpl. Jack Dalton, of Burlington, Vt., who is holding the situation map and remarked:

"You've got a hot spot up here," Dalton smiled agreement.

McGill Returns To Paris; To Talk With 'Ike' Again

PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The American newspaper group making an international tour in the interests of postwar world press freedom returned to Paris today after a visit to the front.

The group, members of the Committee on World Press Freedom of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, expects to confer with Gen. Eisenhower again before continuing on to Madrid later this week. They talked with Eisenhower last Tuesday before leaving Paris for the frontlines.

Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune and committee chairman, said conditions at the front reminded him of the rigorous winter of 1917 in World War I.

Forrest and the other committee members, Dean Earl Ackerman, of the Columbia University Journalism School and Ralph McGill, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, had a long conference with Gen. Patton Jr. after a jeep trip to the U. S. Third Army front.

While in Belgium, the committee also conferred with government officials and newspaper figures of that country.

From Madrid, the group plans to go to Rome and Athens.

Housing Leader To Speak Here

John B. Blandford Jr., national housing administrator, will speak before a gathering of Atlanta realtors, building material dealers, contractors, mortgage loan executives, labor representatives, and other interested businessmen at 7 p. m. Monday, Feb. 5, at the Henry Grady hotel.

His subject will be "The Challenge of the Postwar Housing Job."

"Blandford is certainly the best qualified man in the country to discuss this subject and we believe a large segment of our business community is directly concerned with residential construction, both now and after the war," said F. D. Burge, chairman of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce housing committee, which arranged for Blandford's appearance.

Goodwill Employs 120 Handicapped

More than 120 handicapped persons found work and usefulness from work with the Goodwill Industries last year, according to a report by Warren M. Banta, superintendent.

The workers received $27,143 in wages from the raw materials contributed by some 13,000 Atlantians who gave discarded clothing, shoes, furniture, and household articles.

Dr. Ben Holtzendorf was elected president of the board of directors at the annual meeting this week. Other officers included B. F. Vinson, vice president; Mrs. Clarence Bell, secretary; Mrs. C. P. Timmons, corresponding secretary; J. V. Wellborn, treasurer; Rev. Lester Rumble, chaplain; Warren M. Banta, superintendent; Mrs. M. E. Tilly, the Rev. Wallace Rogers and Mrs. John Manget, all executive committee members.

Atlanta WAC Officer Dies in Texas Hotel

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 28.—(AP)—WAC Lt. Aline B. Gordon, 42, of Atlanta, Ga., a former patient at McCloskey General hospital, Temple, Texas, was found dead in her room at a Dallas hotel today.

Justice of the Peace W. K. Starnett said Lt. Gordon had been dead 14 or 15 hours from "what appeared to be natural causes."

The Eighth Service Command sent the body to Ashburn General hospital, McKinney, Texas, where an autopsy will be held.

'Paper Tea' Helps Out By Half-Ton

By CAROLYN CARTER, Constitution Staff Writer.

BOLTON, Jan. 27.—Missionary circle members here have given the paper shortage a bit of doctoring. They gathered about a half-ton of old magazines and newspapers—a stack to compete with Boy Scouts' collections—and had a "paper tea."

Missionary groups of the Collins Memorial Methodist church are asked to collect $25 each year. Circle No. 2 thought a scrap paper pile would sell for a nice sum, and help the government in its plight as well. So the members followed Mrs. J. A. Hudson's suggestion and had a paper tea.

DEMANDS ON GUESTS

Each guest, from any circle in the church, was asked to bring 10 pounds of paper. Next, she was asked to wear something made of paper. And they came with everything, from paper corsets to paper dresses with lace paper mate converted into stylish jabots, hats made of crepe paper and topped with paper valley lilies, a collar and cuff set made of wallpaper remnants.

Prizes were all made of paper. They were napkin holders, consisting of a paper plate and half of another paper plate put together to be hung on the wall beside a breakfast table.

MOST ORIGINAL

The most original costume was Mrs. E. A. Hudson's dress, made of "comics." Mrs. Hudson is the mother-in-law of the hostess, Mrs. J. A. Hudson, and herself a long-time member of Collins Memorial.

Mrs. C. W. Seagraves Jr., who made a corsage of white paper roses and wore a paper hat topped with flowers, was named the cutest. Other prizes went to Mrs. J. C. Callaway, most unusual; Mrs. G. B. Hudgins, neatest; Mrs. S. S. Hudgins, most perk; Mrs. Kate Bancroft, most real; Mrs. J. A. Hudson, quaintest; Mrs. Will Mauldin, most outstanding; Mrs. F. E. Heaton, neatest patriotic.

Honorable mention: Mrs. Miles Hughes, Mrs. C. W. Seagraves Sr., Mrs. W. L. Donehoo, Mrs. Homer L. Wilson and Mrs. T. C. Brown.

Stars in Washington For FDR's Birthday

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Stars of the stage, screen and radio began trooping into Washington today to help make President Roosevelt's 63d birthday Tuesday bring nearer the conquest of infantile paralysis.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will do her usual heavy duty Tuesday when between 9 p. m. and 3 a. m. she will make all the rounds the professional performers are called on to make Stars sparking the celebration included Myrna Loy, Veronica Lake, Linda Darnell, Monty Woolley, Danny Kaye, Alan Ladd and little Margaret O'Brien.

PAPER TEA PRIZE WINNERS—Recognized at a paper tea in Bolton Friday afternoon for their unique costumes made of paper are Mrs. C. W. Seagraves Jr., left, whose paper hat and matching corsage brought her the title of "cutest." In the center is Mrs. E. A. Hudson, mother-in-law of the hostess, whose dress, made of "comics," won for her the "most original" title. Mrs. J. A. Hudson, hostess and originator of the tea, is pictured on the right with her quaint costume.

The Chinese high command admitted that the Japanese further expanded their holdings in the south China coastal area where the invaders have been setting up a defense zone against expected American landings.

Japanese forces, after making another landing Jan. 24 on the China coast, took Hailung, some 90 miles east-northeast of Hongkong, and then pushed eastward 20 miles to Lufung. Both towns are on the road leading to the strategic port of Swatow where, the Chinese indicated, the Japanese are enlarging their protective area.

The Japanese also gained in the battle to take the last Chinese-held strip of the Canton-Hankow railway. Fighting raged at Kung-kong, 125 miles north of Canton. In central Burma, where Mandalay is the Allied objective, British forces, almost within sight of the city, were building up supplies for a direct move against that

A SPECIAL MESSAGE FROM PACKARD

TO EVERY ARMY AIRMAN PT BOAT CREWMAN AND U. S. TAXPAYER

1. This is the story of another Packard war year—1944. It was a year that saw the completion of the 55,122nd Packard-built combat engine—a total of $4,336,900 precision-built horsepower.

4. In Toledo Packard launched a great new project, devoted to aircraft engine research and development for the U. S. Army Air Forces, also broke ground for a Packard test-flight center at Willow Run Army Air Base.

7. Packard employees lead the nation in War Production Drive awards for suggestions on production shortcuts. In 1944, 53 new awards (with estimated annual savings of 786,000 man hours) brought the Packard total to 162.

2. More than a fifth of these 55,122 engines were Packard marine powerplants for Navy PT boats and British MTB's. Wherever you find the MTB's swift PT's, they are powered by Packard engines.

5. Packard engine production in 1944 topped 1943 by 57% but the dollar volume of business done went up only 32%. Packard continued to whittle down the average cost per engine, saving you money as a taxpayer.

8. War production comes first at Packard. But when war conditions permit, Packard will build cars again, carrying out an expansion program that will double Packard's biggest pre-war output. Your future Packard will be well worth waiting for!

3. Remember the famous week when a Mustang broke the trans-continental speed record, and a Mosquito plane set a new trans-Atlantic speed record? These planes were powered by Packard-built Rolls-Royce aircraft engines.

6. Packard income tax for 1944 is estimated to exceed $19,000,000—almost five times larger than the company's expected net profit. In fact, less than 1 cent out of every dollar of business done remained as net income.

A special postscript to Packard owners

Packard is also producing vital parts to help keep the nation's transportation rolling, and Packard dealers are trained in protective wartime service. Keep your car at its best—you may have to drive it longer than you think!

Court Procedure Bills Set for Solons' Debate

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

The legislature today will debate bills designed to speed the wheels of justice in Georgia's cumbersome court procedure. Bills sponsored by the Georgia Bar Association are on calendars of both the senate and house.

Wallace Ready To Take Fight To 'The People'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(UP)—Vice President Wallace is prepared to place the "issues" before the people if the senate refuses to confirm his nomination to be secretary of commerce, it was disclosed tonight.

A highly reliable source said that, despite apparently overwhelming opposition, he does not plan to withdraw his name to save himself and President Roosevelt further embarrassment for what the chief executive called a political "reward" appointment.

AIR-TIGHT CASE
The United Press informant portrayed Wallace as feeling that, even if the senate rebuffs him, he will have an air-tight case to lay before the thousands of people who have supported him in the past and consequently that his status as a national political figure will increase rather than diminish.

Confirmation appears to hang, ironically, on the ability of pro-Wallace and administration forces to win passage of a bill by Sen. George D. Simmons, of Georgia, to keep federal loan operations from Wallace's jurisdiction.

An informal poll conducted by the United Press shows that of 70 senators questioned, 38 will vote against confirmation and 21 for. Six said they were undecided on both the nomination and the George bill. Others would not express themselves.

A second poll showed 48 senators for the George bill and eight against.

Of those for Wallace, 17 are Democrats. Those for the George bill include 26 Republicans. Administration leaders, who at first sought to block the George bill, now are pinning their hopes on getting it passed before the nomination comes up. Their strategy is that opposition to Wallace will decrease if there is some assurance that he will have no control over the multi-billion-dollar lending agencies formerly controlled by Jones.

WANT ACTION

Senators who are opposed to Wallace under any circumstances want action on the nomination while their forces are at peak strength. They concede him a good chance of confirmation if he is stripped of the loan operations. They are seeking to impress upon those whose opposition is less intense that senate passage of the bill is not a conclusive bar to his getting both jobs. The measure still would have to go to the house and also would be subjected to the possibility of a presidential veto.

Republicans who have announced they will vote for Wallace include Sen. Joseph H. Ball, of Minnesota, young Liberal who shocked his party last November by openly supporting President Roosevelt for re-election, and Sens. George D. Aiken, of Vermont, and William Langer, of North Dakota. Sens. Kenneth S. Wherry, of Nebraska, Republican whip, and Claude Pepper, Democrat, Florida, the latter the most outspoken of Wallace's supporters, agreed that chances of confirmation are stronger if the George bill is passed first.

Sens. Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, New York, and Harley M. Kilgore, Democrat, West Virginia, administration supporters, announced their intention to vote for Wallace without the passage of the bill. They said that "to oppose him is to defeat about America's future."

John A. Suder, 58, Dies in Jonesboro

John A. Suder, 58, of Jonesboro, Western Union transportation clerk, died Saturday night at the residence.

In addition to his wife, survivors include four daughters, Misses Lois, Bobbie and Lillie Suder and Mrs. R. D. Porter; a son, John A. Suder, Jr.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Suder; a brother, L. L. Suder, Jr.; and a sister, Mrs. Kermit Martin.

The house will take up two bills already passed by the senate. One authorizes superior courts to render declaratory judgments. The other requires that acts of legislature be filed with superior court clerks within 30 days after passage.

The senate will debate bills which would: 1. Confer rule-making power on the Supreme Court; 2. Incorporate the Georgia bar; 3. Create a judicial council, and 4. Abolish second originals by providing that all civil processes shall run to all sheriffs and constables in the state.

MOVING TOWARD PROGRAM

With committees in the house and senate working on many other bar reform proposals, the general assembly is moving quickly toward adoption of most of the 14-point legislative program outlined by the Georgia Bar association. President Charles Bloch, of Macon, said one measure—confering jurisdiction upon appellate courts to grant supersedeas in all civil cases where supersedeas has been refused by the trial judge—would be withdrawn. The supreme court has amended its rules to make provisions for this, Bloch said, and legislation is unnecessary. Another proposal, calling for revision of probate laws, will not be presented to the legislature this year. Still another, calling for appointment of probate officer in each judicial circuit, has not been introduced.

The house has passed a bill providing for retirement of superior court judges at the age of 70 after 10 years' continuous service, or at 60 after 20 years' continuous service. This was amended to prevent a judge defeated for reelection from being eligible for the pension. Designed to place younger men on the bench, the measure gives retiring judges two-thirds of their salary for life.

Declining to delegate its own law-making authority onto the courts, the senate has amended the proposal conferring rule-making powers on the supreme court. The amendment declares no rules will become effective until approved by the general assembly. Members of the house and senate constitution revision committee last week objected to outright grant of rule-making powers to the court.

LABOR MEASURE

A house committee is studying a measure that would add a fourth director to the workmen's compensation bureau. The lawyers claim it is impossible to get an impartial appeal decision under the three-man board, since one of the three serves as the original trial judge and then sits on the appeal board. By adding a fourth member, the trial director could be eliminated from sitting on the appeal board.

A house judiciary committee has favored a bill requiring foreign corporations to file copies of their charters with the secretary of state.

House committees are studying two other bar proposals. One revises the law regarding creation of trusts and their administration. The other revises procedure with respect to foreclosure of deeds to secure debt so as to require a petition to a court in connection with a foreclosure under power of sale.

Vet of Invasion Will Speak Here

Lt. Col. Rosengren, P. Rosengren, veteran of the invasion of France and victim of a robot bomb in London, will address a special war effort luncheon of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce at Ansley hotel at 12:30 p. m. Thursday.

Col. Rosengren will tell "why, in a world at war, there is no room for spectators even on the home front."

Special invited guests are: Gov. Arnall, Mayor William B. Hartsfield, W. E. Mitchell, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, T. G. Woodford, president of the Retail Credit Company; Lawrence Bell, Bell Aircraft; James Carmichael, of Bell Aircraft; N. Baxter Maddox, First National Bank; Charles H. Hopkins Arrives, Paris Debates

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The American broadcasting station in Europe tonight quoted a Paris radio broadcast that Harry Hopkins, personal advisor to President Roosevelt, had arrived in Paris.

IT'S COME COME TO THIS—A Charlotte, N. C., drug store seeks to counter partly the cigarette shortage by offering for sale "rabbit tobacco," a weed found commonly in the south and a favorite smoke of boyhood days. The clerk is W. O. Closed Shop Hearing Today To Attract Crowd

The largest crowd of citizens to attend a legislative hearing this session is expected this afternoon when a house committee considers an anti-closed shop amendment.

The public hearing will get under way at 2 p. m. in the house chamber, third floor of the state capitol.

Rep. Claude Pittman, of Bartow, chairman of constitution committee No. 1, said the committee has received numerous letters protesting the amendment from Georgia members of the AFL, the CIO, the Mail Carriers Union and other labor organizations.

Authors of the amendment, led by Rep. Theron Jennings, of Sumter, and Herschel Lovett, of Laurens, claimed the proposal to outlaw closed shops is not an anti-labor move. It does not prevent unions from operating, but, on the other hand, it does not force a person to join a union in order to get a job, they said.

Rising to a point of personal privilege last week, Rep. Lovett criticized activities of an assistant state purchasing agent in organizing state employees into a union.

The Georgia proposed amendment follows those adopted in Arkansas and Florida.

Cox Leads Fight On Closed Shop

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Administration forces pointed a labor draft bill tonight toward its major test in the house, determined to ward off a barrage of amendments that could mean its defeat.

Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the Military Affairs Committee predicted eventual passage of the measure designed to force all civilian men between the ages of 18 and 45 into essential war jobs.

But administration supporters admitted privately that the bill will be sidetracked or killed if opposition forces succeed in hammering into it provisions relating to union membership for workers or outlawing racial discrimination in war jobs.

Reps. Eugene Cox, Democrat, Georgia, and Howard W. Smith, Democrat, Virginia, will offer a floor amendment making it illegal to force drafted workers to join unions in closed shop war plants. To offset the union membership amendment, labor backers were ready with a proposal making the manpower bill the vehicle to set up a permanent fair employment practices committee to bar racial or religious discrimination by employers.

Week Decides Poll Tax Fate In 3 States

By The United Press.

Whether the south will divest itself of its historic poll tax control of the ballot box is likely to be indicated by events shaping up in three legislative chambers this week.

In Georgia, South Carolina and Tennessee, foes of the law which requires payment of a $1 voting tax are pounding determinedly at the dikes of what they contend is the only bar to enfranchisement of many thousands of potential voters.

Politicians in the five other southern states retaining the levy—Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia—are intently watching the outcome of legislative battles in Atlanta, Columbia and Nashville, with the Georgia house of representatives in the center of this three-hour law-making spectacle.

The Georgia house Wednesday will vote on outright repeal of the poll tax law. Previously this body overwhelmingly threw out a "feeler" repeal—a measure which would have exempted only veterans of all wars from payment of the levy. Since then, however, the senate has passed a straight repeal bill, and it is this measure which will come up for action Wednesday.

Tuesday the Tennessee house committee in charge of such legislation will announce disposal of seven anti-poll-tax bills. The Tennessee senate already had advanced two such proposals, and the faint hope of repealists in this state hangs on the slender thread of dodging a constitutional provision which bars consideration at the same session of a measure too similar to bills already defeated.

South Carolina has one bill on the calendar—almost identical with the veterans' exemption bill defeated by the Georgia house. Its author is expected to offer a constitutional amendment this week.

But the Georgia house holds the spotlight in the suddenly whipped-up crusade for free-votes-for-all. A state traditionally staunch in its adherence to the "illy-white" ballot box, Georgians are awaiting outcome of the daring move made by their youthful Gov. Arnall.

Making of the record in the form of depositions taken by a commissioner in chancery was begun yesterday.

Train Waits Hour On 'Son James'

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Departure of the Chicago and North Western extra fare City of Los Angeles was delayed for an hour and seven minutes last night at the request of Col. James Roosevelt, of the Marines who telegraphed he was on "urgent duty status," a representative of the railroad said today.

Col. Roosevelt, accompanied by his wife, asked that the streamliner be held when the Manhattan Limited was riding from Washington dropped six and a half hours behind schedule because of weather conditions. E. W. Everson, assistant station master of the North Western railroad, said.

On arriving at Salt Lake City, Col. Roosevelt said, "I didn't ask to have the train held. It must have been the conductor of the Manhattan limited that asked for it to be held."

Big Blazes Behind Nazi Line Puzzle Allies

ROME, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Large fires were seen just behind the Germans' Senio river winter defense line in the Eighth Army area, it was announced officially today, as ground activity on the Italian front was limited to patrolling for the twenty-second straight day.

The meaning of these destructions was not explained. The fires, seen burning at Cuffiano on the west bank of the Senio river, six miles west of Fenza, constituted part of the unexplained activity observed behind enemy lines recently. There were a series of heavy explosions in Lugo yesterday.

During the past 24 hours patrols have been active along the entire front. In the Fifth Army area aggressive parties, operating over hazardous trails and swollen mountain streams, have engaged the enemy in several places particularly in the Apennine line before Bologna and in the mountains to the west.

Near the west coast German patrols stabbed deep into Fifth Army defenses in the Serchio river area where an enemy assault was turned back a month ago, after an advance of several miles.

Uncle Sam Asks You-- To Save Coal--by Saving Electricity

UNCLE SAM asks you to make all possible savings in the use of your electric service. Since much of our power supply is produced by coal, every kilowatt hour that can be saved will help to conserve that important resource of war. It is estimated that the supply of coal available in 1945 will be 40,000,000 tons short of the demand, based on present rates of consumption. Every effort must be made to curtail non-essential uses of coal in order to preserve the supply of this critical fuel for war production needs.

The War Production Board asks consumers of electricity in homes, stores, industrial plants, offices and elsewhere to discontinue all uses of electricity not actually necessary. You are asked to turn off all lights when illumination is not actually necessary. You are asked to disconnect appliances when they are not in use. The small, voluntary savings that each individual user of electricity can make will add up to big savings of coal and that will help Uncle Sam to meet his vital war needs for fuel.

IN ADDITION to the voluntary savings of electricity which consumers are asked to make, the War Production Board has issued an order requiring certain uses of electricity to be discontinued. They are listed in the table at the right.

The Georgia Power Company and all other suppliers of electricity are required by the WPB, after February 1, the effective date of the order, to notify any person known to be violating these restrictions. In case the violation is not corrected, we are required to report the violation to the WPB for such action as the WPB sees fit to take—including a possible suspension of the consumers' electric service.

This Company, however, feels confident that its customers will promptly and willingly comply, in the interest of furthering the nation's war program, and that no such action will be necessary.

We assure you that there is no shortage of electric power generating capacity, and that the purpose of the WPB order is simply to save coal for essential war needs.

WPB PROHIBITS THESE USES OF ELECTRICITY

Beginning February 1, the following uses of electricity are prohibited by order of the War Production Board.

1. All outdoor lighting for advertising and promotional purposes.
2. Outdoor display lighting except where necessary for the conduct of outdoor business establishments.
3. All outdoor lighting for decorative and ornamental purposes.
4. All show window lighting which does not contribute illumination necessary to the interior of the establishment.
5. All illumination of marquees in excess of 60 watts per marquee.
6. All white way street lighting except the amount necessary for public safety, to be determined by city officials.
7. Outdoor sign lighting, except an amount necessary to identify, and direct people to, establishments essential to the public welfare.

Our commercial and industrial customers are being notified of these restrictions by mail.

Exposing the Secret of Our Success

The Birmingham News is worried.

"Is Atlanta a kind of regional capital of the federal government and becoming more and more so?" it demands editorially.

The News' latest evidence of concern with what has been Birmingham's sixty-four-dollar question over a period of many years was precipitated by a letter to the editor from one R. E. Seibels, a former president of the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Seibels writes that Birmingham, which recently lost the regional Social Security office to Atlanta, is not alone in its bereavement. Montgomery's district office of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads is also being moved to Atlanta.

Mr. Seibels suspects a plot.

But Mr. Seibels' suspicions are nothing new.

"Some years ago," he admits, "when I was president of our Chamber of Commerce, the problem of finding some means of counteracting the extensive influences that seem to dominate the bureau heads in Washington, in favor of the city of Atlanta, was the subject, that compelled our most serious attention, as it was with other southern chambers of commerce. But, never yet have we found a satisfactory solution to this mysterious puzzle that gives so much to Atlanta at the expense of other cities. If we are up against some powerfully conducted lobby in Washington, as seems probable, then it is our business to demand a congressional investigation through our representatives, that will end this continuous movement of government business to this favored city. Perhaps it is high time to ask the senators and congressmen of this and other adjoining states the reason why the state of Georgia is so effectively in control of things in Washington. . . ."

Ask your congressman, Mr. Seibels. Ask your senator, too. Investigate the "mysterious puzzle" to your heart's content. And when you're worn and weary from seeking that "powerfully conducted lobby," rest your frustrated bones in the reading of the Journal of Ralph Waldo Emerson. He had the answer nearly a century ago . . .

Atlanta has a better mousetrap and the world is merely beating a path to our door.

Other States Seek Home Rule, Too

Tennessee has joined the growing number of states which at long last have realized the extravagant impracticality of the entire legislature passing on strictly local matters.

Introduced into the Tennessee state senate this week—under sponsorship of the Tennessee Municipal League—was a bill aimed at restoring home rule to Tennessee municipalities.

"The home rule bill," explains the Nashville Tennessean, "would remove changing of city charters from the legislature to the electorate of the cities. An amendment to a charter could only be made after a majority of the citizens had voted in favor of the change."

More and more states are enacting home rule legislation. Eighteen have it already in effect. Bills providing for home rule are under consideration in the legislatures of at least three more right now. Still others are studying the entire problem of local legislation, endeavoring to work out their own systems whereby the people affected will have the decision in matters of strictly local import.

The home rule proposal incorporated in the revised version of our new state constitution will, in the opinion of experts, fill Georgia's needs quite adequately.

And it will be, in the opinion of every progressive Georgian, the outstanding feature of the state's new organic law.

The Limiting Factor in Aviation

Those who envision, with the close of the war, an unlimited number of aircraft, of unlimited size, flying, a la Stephen Leacock, "rapidly in all directions," are doomed to disappointment.

For there is a definite limiting factor which will determine (a) how large aircraft can be and (b) how many can be put in the air. That limitation is not in size or design for, apparently, aircraft can be made in almost any size that will be profitable. The limit lies in the amount of high octane gasoline that can be produced.

And behind that, of course, lies the amount of oil that still exists in the world to be made into gasoline.

Already the supply of Romanian oil has been drained so low that it has been suggested this supply be furnished postwar Germany because, while sufficient for that country's industrial needs, it could not last long enough for her to make a successful war.

Russia's efforts to secure oil from Iran indicates that she will have no oil to spare; that the Bakus wells must be used exclusively for Russian aviation . . . perhaps held in reserve by the Soviets for war use only.

As for us . . . the limits of American oil production, both in North and South America, are definitely in sight.

War has caused the world to dip deeply into its available oil supplies . . . and whether aviation will advance to the point which is mechanically possible may well depend upon how well we can convert the cheaper sources of fuel into high-octane gas . . . or whether we can produce fuel from vegetation, which, in the forests of the Amazon, would give us inexhaustible supplies.

In any event, if aviation is to go ahead, the time has come for us to think and plan ahead, too.

Enemy's Game

Editor Constitution: I read your editorials daily and enjoy them all, but let me say that the one, "Let's Not Play the Enemy's Game," is one that I wish every American citizen could read. Surely it is well known that the Germans are the best propagandists in the world and it is so sad that we have so many who fall for such bunk as they are putting out now and we cannot see through it. Certainly if we can remember at all we know England fought with her back to the wall for our protection after Dunkirk and on and on until we were attacked at Pearl Harbor. We are only kidding ourselves when we argue that we can take care of ourselves. Well do I remember when we were so sick at heart about our shipping casualties from attacks by German submarines; we losing ship after ship until the loss ran up into the hundreds. England has protected us for all these years with her fleet in the Atlantic. Surely we cannot blame her for being concerned now about unifying Greece when she has so much at stake in and around the Suez canal and the Balkans. It means our own self-preservation for England to protect and preserve this area. Certainly the United States would be concerned if the enemy were trying to interfere with Mexico. For the same reasoning may we not presume that Russia is interested and concerned about Poland and her other border countries? What we need to talk is more solidarity among our own people with reference to all our Allies who have helped us while we were helping them. This is no time for us to become hysterical and fall out. We are in the war up to our necks and now expect our casualty lists to mount, so let us get busy on the home front practicing and talking unity with our allies, thereby hastening the end of this terrible war.

Help Poor Dogs

Editor Constitution: Because of the article in last week's paper concerning the dogs to be put to death at the pound unless someone claimed them, I stopped in there last Saturday. I've been in dog pounds before but never one like this. The floors of the pens were dripping wet and all the dogs laying in it and shivering. The building isn't even heated in any way. It surely is pitiful enough to see them just closed in waiting to be killed without going through suffering cold for 10 days. They just lay around in heaps trying to keep warm.

Don't you please investigate there and see what could be done? Surely wooden boarded floors would be an inexpensive improvement.

My purpose in going down was to pick out a dog but they hardly stand a chance what with being so wet and dirty and broken in spirit. However, I did choose one and now have him here at home with me.

Don't you please see that something is done to help these poor dogs?

How the Robots Came to New York

(Editor's Note: Ralph McGill is en route around the world as a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' mission in behalf of universal news freedom. His column will appear as time and communication facilities allow. When it is not available, substitute features will be used, as today's by Richard L. (Orson Welles) Strout, special feature writer for the Christian Science Monitor.)

It was in early spring of 1945 that the first robot hit New York. It was in the dusk of evening and the lights were already on in the tall skyscrapers. What happened came quickly and with little warning.

It now appears that the flying missile, a modification of the jet-propelled type, was first seen about 20 miles off shore at a point roughly opposite Yaphank, Long Island. Despite its peculiar sound and bright glow from its red-hot tail, it attracted slight attention. There was little that could have been done in any case in the matter of minutes that ensued. It seems to have been launched about 60 miles at sea, traveling a little north of due west. A Coast Guard patrol notified New York of the approach of an "unidentified aircraft" but the signal was not received till after the explosion.

Moving at about six miles a minute, only the fastest aircraft, poised in the air for a nose dive, could have intercepted it. Some fishing boats saw it at Fire Island; it cut across the main southern line of the Long Island Railroad at Rockville Center, and a few seconds later passed over Queens.

The normal life of New York was going on below. The prospect of early victory had again turned men's thoughts to the future; as in each previous spell of good news, the war effort tended to slacken; congress had just rejected the National Service Act; a mine strike for higher pay was imminent and threatened the whole price-control mechanism; the extraordinary success of Soviet arms had turned the Russophobes, who a few months earlier had attacked Moscow for "failing to open a winter front," to laments over the strength exhibited by the Russian armies.

In New York probably not more than a dozen recognized the unmistakable sound. Two British sailors in Central Park, Andrew McLaren taking a walk, and the overheard meteor and congratulated their companions that they were out of London, where such a sight would have meant a "buzz bomb." When the motor actually cut out, instinct was too much and they flung themselves to the ground. It appears that a returned press association war correspondent at Lynbrook, Long Island, actually tried to phone for an air raid alert but got a busy signal.

The peculiar, faltering roar of the engine—the sound of an outboard motor magnified a million times—suddenly stopped. In the canyons of New York it was, of course, impossible to follow the flight, but from observation towers of tall buildings the spectacle was clear. The missile circled while one could count, perhaps, five. Then it dived.

The effect on the Empire State building has been frequently described. The real effect of the robot was, of course, on men's thinking. In some respects, it was the most important shot ever fired, for it changed the thinking of a nation. Students of war had been telling America that, after a century and a quarter, the United States had lost its isolation. This robot emotionally convinced 130,000,000 people.

It is now known that the slanting blow of the one-ton projectile permanently twisted the Empire State building above the 76th story by about a foot, while cracks appeared several stories below ground. The surprising thing, on the whole, was the relatively small damage, save at the point of contact on the Madison avenue side. The real harm came from falling glass. It has been said that there were not enough windows left in the 102-story building to "pane a cottage." Fortunately, the setback caught much of the fall.

There were other robots. To the last, a section of the press insisted that they were not enemy-fired missiles at all, but domestic bombs, or ammunition, explosions. One isolationist Washington paper insisted on this even when a Nazi terror weapon landed amidst its delivery trucks. It was this same daylight buzz bomb, incidentally, that was followed up to Washington from Delaware bay by air raid sirens, and that drove congressmen into the basement.

When they emerged, they passed the National Service Act with only seven dissenting votes.

Do Veterans Want Their Old Jobs Back?

There has been a lot of talk in recent months of the right of the discharged veteran to his old job. There is, even, provision in the law popularly known as the "GI Bill of Rights," that, unless absolutely impossible, the employer has to take the veteran back, either in his former job or in one equal or better, and with no loss of seniority rights, provided the veteran applies for it within 90 days after his discharge from the service.

Furthermore, the employer is forbidden to fire said veteran within the first 12 months of his re-employment, except for good and approved cause.

It seems to me, however, that the employer may be considering this problem from the wrong side. It may be that, instead of worrying over taking all former employees back after they leave the services, the average employer should be worrying over inducing the men to come back.

A recent survey indicated that at least 40 per cent—in some sections more than this—of discharged veterans neither want to go back to their pre-war jobs, nor, even, want to return to their former home communities to live.

Life in the services has changed their outlook and they don't anticipate with any keen relish the future if it means going back to a routine desk job in some office or to occupations not too well paid nor too desirable as to conditions. And many of them, having seen parts of the country and of the world far distant from their old homes, have felt the lure of the distant greener fields and feel they would have better prospects some other place than home.

Some of the veterans will not want even, to settle down in this country. For one reason or another, they will want to live, in the future, in other lands entirely.

Nor must it be forgotten that, with the problem of armed occupation, for years to come, of defeated Germany and Japan, we shall have to maintain a much larger Army than we did in prewar days. Most conservative estimates predict a standing Army of one million men, with additional men in our tremendously enlarged Navy.

And quite a large proportion of today's soldiers and sailors will ask nothing better than to re-enlist, when their present wartime service is ended.

The Employers' Angle All of which leads up to the conclusion that many employers, with vision to see this trend, are not worrying over providing jobs for their former workers who will return as veterans, but are worrying about inducing sufficient of their old, experienced workers to return to their prewar jobs.

These employers are the ones who are maintaining constant contact, through the mails, with their former workers who are now in the service. They are seeing that, every week, letters from the office or shop or store, are going all around the world, to every man and woman, who left them to wear the uniform.

They are sending the house organs, if they have them, to these folks now so far away and keeping them advised of the little friendly items of shop or office gossip.

They are letting the soldier and his pal, the sailor, know that if he wishes, when he comes back he can not only have his own job again, but can have every assistance and opportunity possible for advancement into a better job.

These are the wise employers. They are the ones who will be "sitting pretty" when the war is over, the envy of competitors who will continue to be pestered by new and inefficient and ill-trained, fast-changing employes groups.

By the way, there is yet another temptation to the discharged veteran, to keep him out of his old job.

Independence Think of all the little businesses that will be reopened or established when normal times return. Think of all the camps and restaurants and other establishments that will spring up, to meet a real demand, once the highways are again filled with inexhaustible streams of cars using gasoline without rationed limit.

Think of the veterans with their discharge bonus, their government-provided capital for investment, and their accumulated savings in war bonds. Don't you know veterans will constitute a large proportion of those who operate such independent, little business places in the days to come.

Hold his job for him, until he returns? How about making it attractive enough he will want to return, first?

Those 'Beasts' on the Eastern Front

ROBERT QUILLEN

Goebbels At It Again

On Jan. 8 radio listeners who were tuned in on the wave length of the British Broadcasting Company heard the announcer give credit for stopping the German offensive on the western front.

He said that Monty, placed in charge by Eisenhower, had "found no defense lines, the Americans somewhat bewildered, few reserves on hand and supply lines cut." So Monty "took over the battered American force, planned his action and stopped the German drive." And now the battle was practically won, "thanks to Montgomery."

Such remarks, under the circumstances, were dynamite. Everybody knew that our high command, thinking only in terms of offense, had underestimated German power and left the First Army front almost undefended. The German offensive had rolled over advance units as though they were not there.

But the doughboys had held where it was vitally necessary to hold, and many of them had stood and died to delay the German advance.

The people here at home, having recovered from their first scare, felt rather proud of the way our generals and troops had taken it on the chin and come back to force the fighting.

Monty had been given command of American divisions because lines of communication had broken between Bradley and part of his forces. But despite this official explanation, many people suspected that Eisenhower had called on the British because our own generals had failed.

The defeat, the losses and this apparent admission of Monty's superiority had left Americans in no mood to endure criticism. They were touchy and ready to fight anybody who said the wrong thing.

The broadcast giving Monty all the credit was much like dropping a match in a powder factory. The story of it, cabled to America by correspondents, sizzled with wrath.

Many newspapers—perhaps most of them—gave it a black headline on the front page.

Two days later came the revelation that BBC was not responsible. The broadcast had come from Germany on BBC's wave length. Dr. Goebbels had outsmarted us again.

Newspapers printed the correction, but usually under smaller headlines. Many who saw the original story probably missed the explanation.

The one hope of the Germans is to divide the Allies. And the success of this effort suggests that we still haven't learned to be wary of booby traps.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

THE NEW CONSTITUTION (Lowndes County News)

Governor Arnall appointed a group of Georgians, varied in their avocations, and highly respected for their ability and character, to draw up a constitution to replace the ancient and outmoded patchwork now being used. The proposals submitted by this group will be studied minutely by members of the House and Senate. It is assumed that then the people will be permitted to vote on whether or not they think it good for the state.

After going through such rigorous and critical inspection it is amazing to hear someone suggest that something is being put over some one. If ever there was a democratic procedure to attempt to improve a state's government Governor Arnall's effort is that and we believe it will be accepted favorably and without bias by the people of Georgia.

Scrambled Waiters Instead of Eggs

Men are men out in Wells, Nev., and they know how they like their eggs.

Thus, when a restaurant served him an order of ham-and-which was not to his fancy, an unidentified customer whipped out his protestor, shot three hash-slingers and departed for greener lunch-sonettes.

Moreover, to add insult to injury, he left without paying his bill.

The proprietor was furious. So were the other customers. They'd never have come in had they known an additional 20 per cent amusement tax would be added for the floor show.

The Chamber of Commerce held a called meeting and passed a resolution deploring the stranger's action. Things like that can give a town a bad name.

Everything's cooled off by now. But there's a new sign over the cash register: If you don't like our food, JUST say so.

And when a customer orders eggs overlight, brother they really turn them tenderly.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Crucial Weeks Of War-Lie Ahead

WASHINGTON—It may impress a lot of people as strange that the Russians did not tell us anything about the great new winter offensive launched on the eastern front until the operations actually got under way.

Neither the British nor the American high command was informed as to plans for the offensive. Thus our own military commanders were as much in the dark as the Germans on when the big drive was to start.

All that our military leaders knew about it was that the Russians were making gigantic preparations for some action. They had no information as to its scale, the locale, or time for its launching.

Distraught of leaks, the Russians have long since learned that it is unwise to tell us too much. We have a way of talking freely over here about military matters that is not tolerated or understood elsewhere. The British, rightfully, have complained of us in the same way.

It was a long time before they, the Russians, would permit any of our military observers to go up to the front lines. They didn't want us to know too much of what they were doing for fear of it getting back to the Germans.

When some of our officials sought to dress them down once for not telling us anything the Russians had an appropriate reply. Former Secretary of State Hull had been dealing with a Moscow mission over plans for aid. Exasperated over the reluctance of the mission to reveal everything, he barked out: "How in the hell can we help you, if you don't tell what is going on?"

"We tell you our secrets, and then we see it in the newspapers the next day," the Russians replied.

All of which has been only too true. We are not much of a people to keep secrets.

That is why the Russians did not deem it wise to let us in on the big secret of the war—that they were all set for mounting one of the greatest offensives of the war. Certainly it is the greatest yet staged by the Red army.

Had to Wait Now that the offensive is well under way, it can be revealed that the Russians originally planned to start the drive last December. It was scheduled to begin shortly before Christmas. Everything was in readiness for mounting it then, but operations were delayed by unreasonable thaws which made it impossible to move heavy armor over the Polish plains. The Russians had to wait for a solid freeze.

We knew that they were laying the groundwork for something, but beyond that we were in ignorance of the whole affair. The Russians have learned that it isn't wise to talk too much.

Some of our top-ranking military men, while giving the Red army full credit for the great achievement it has already made, are still cautious about making a final appraisal of the current offensive because of the relatively small number of prisoners the Russians are taking.

It is pointed out that the earlier great British-American drive through France resulted in the capture of upwards of three-quarters of a million Germans, whereas the Russians have claimed less than 100,000 so far.

If a real breakthrough had been effected on the eastern front, it is said, we could expect the Russians to report a much larger number of prisoners captured.

According to the military tacticians, this low number of prisoners might mean that the Germans had met the first blows of the offensive by withdrawing, hoping thus to draw the Russians out before striking counterblows.

Not until the Germans strike these counterblows will it be possible to make an intelligent appraisal of the true scope of the Russian offensive. If the Germans hold at whatever point they have selected to make a stand, then the war is likely to continue on until spring and summer.

But if the Russians, on the other hand, keep going through any line of organized resistance, anything can happen. The point of it is, as our military leaders see it, that the Germans thus far have not seemed to have brought their main forces into play. Otherwise the casualties and the prisoners would have been greater.

Perhaps the next few weeks will tell the story more fully. They could be the most crucial weeks of the war.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Wallace Still May Get Commerce Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—There's been a lot of speculative conversation here about President Roosevelt's real intentions in kicking out Jesse Jones and offering Henry Wallace for the job.

One theory is that the President was taking this way of disposing of both the former vice president and Jesse Jones at the same time, knowing in advance that Congress probably would strip Mr. Wallace of those leading agencies that Jesse supervised along with his Commerce Department post, if it even let him be secretary of commerce.

In brief, he was throwing Henry to the wolves on Capitol Hill. Another double-cross like the Chicago convention killing of Henry, they say.

In support of this theory those who present it point to the letter Mr. Roosevelt wrote to Mr. Jones, with the crass statement that he wanted a job for Henry Wallace and Henry said he was qualified for the one Jesse had, just sort of offhand and bluntly the political spoilsman at the same time, without any particular recommendation for Mr. Wallace, and with encomiums for Mr. Jones.

In view of all the circumstances, it is doubtful that this theory will stand up. It sounds like wishful thinking.

It is more likely that the President used that letter—which he certainly suspected Jesse would make public—as a diversionary piece of red meat to attract the saying hounds. Also it seems to have been written with the impishness he sometimes displays. This is not to his credit nor does it add to the dignity of the office, but it is understandable when you know that the President knows about that attempt to steal Texas away from him some months ago. Jesse Jones' friends and compatriots were heavily involved in that.

The President's real purpose, behind this playful perfidie, seems clear. This is to shift the course of his administration sharply for its postwar function of creating jobs in the way he thinks that ought to be done, which is not Jesse Jones' way. And also he is serving notice that he is going to do his part to keep the Democratic party as New Deal a party as possible.

This objective was quickly detected. It may be judged from the cheers that went up from the left and the groans thundering from the right.

He could have delivered no plaudits thrust at the conservatives and most of the southerners in Congress than to ditch Jesse

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Special Priorities

The incident of Elliott Roosevelt's dog is a good occasion to teach some generals their proper place in relation to the civil authority.

"No comment," says the headquarters of the Army Transport Command when asked who authorized an "A" travel priority on an Army plane for the dog, traveling as private property, which bumped three servicemen off the ship at Memphis.

What do you mean, "No comment?" The thing to do now is to call up Gen. Harold L. George, of this command, make him click his heels before a committee of Congress, stand at attention and answer questions. This command needs reminding of its status and probably some new personnel without political motives, ambitions or obligations. No officer whose administration has been such as to permit this misuse of Army property and this imposition on enlisted men on behalf of a dog should be allowed to consider himself immune to questioning. He can be made to answer.

This is no more "unfortunate incident" but an expression of a dangerous attitude of superiority by military men over the civil population. In France, recently, enlisted soldiers have been sentenced to long terms in prison for black market operations comparable in principle to the incident of Elliott Roosevelt's dog. Like the government cigarettes which those soldiers sold for their profit, this plane was the property of the American people, not of any general or President Roosevelt's family, and like the cigarettes, the accommodations allotted to this use were misappropriated to private use.

And, while the subject is warm there is occasion also to check the priorities on commercial transportation which have been practically monopolized by the government with civilians outside the privileged class imposed on with delays, expense and hardship.

It is no justification to say that civilians should not travel unnecessarily. The law is that they have as much right to travel as Eleanor Roosevelt, the Hollywood Communists who went to Washington to celebrate their fourth victory or the 300 members of the 1,000 Club whose trip consumed the equivalent of a 14-car train and for the capital for the formal exercises and the incidental drinking.

They have as much right to travel in the best accommodations to be had as Elliott's latest wife, whose trip for the inauguration seems to have been her second since their marriage. They are no less entitled to go to conventions, whether of antique dealers or the Sons and of I Will Arise, than Mrs. Roosevelt, Sidney Hillman and a thousand others were to occupy a train space to Chicago for the purely political convention of the CIO or William Green, Dan Tobin, Joe Padway, and all the miscellaneous high-binders, drunks, thieves and racketeers were to go to the convention of the American Federation of Labor in New Orleans. If such people have the right of assembly so have that great and faceless multitude whom these patronizing and self-recognized superiors refer to as "the little people."

They have a right to use the commercial planes, too, subject to legitimate priorities and these priorities do not belong to gallivanting bureaucrats on political or personal business, under the pretext of public necessity.

When an "A" priority can be had for a dog occupying a plane, it may be suspected that this was not the first abuse but merely the ultimate outrage, perpetrated by men emboldened to excess by earlier impositions. There is no reason to anticipate that the characteristic snobbery and sense of privilege of the ruling household will be abated or embarrassed by the findings of a congressional inquiry, however scathing. Mrs. Roosevelt expressed this attitude when she remarked, apropos her own restless wanderings, that she traveled because "the people want me to," a mandate that must have been done in invisible ink in as much as no such proposition has ever appeared to the naked eye on the ballot or in any of her party's platforms. From the time when accommodations became a problem before Pearl Harbor, since Mrs. Roosevelt's mileage has exceeded by thousands of miles, within the United States alone, that of the most itinerant non-professional wanderer.

If these be legitimate missions, remembering that Mrs. Roosevelt usually travels double with her secretary, if her trips by plane long after under-privileged civilians were being "bumped" at way stations were justified, then any Army wife following her husband, any mother bound for the embarkation port, any aimless member of "the little people" has the same justification.

Again, the sense of special class and importance makes itself felt among the public whose travels might have been voluntarily restricted by personal decision if such an example had been set, the example having been just the reverse, the traffic is the greatest in history and the method taken then to decrease the strain is not to correct the example but to threaten hardship and disfavor.

Gen. George should be able to flip right out of his files the actual document which gave Elliott Roosevelt's dog an "A" priority on Army transportation. If he can't he isn't equal to his job, but that "no comment" of the transport command is both a challenge and an affront to the people who are his boss and pay his salary.

Attends FDR Press Conference

LOUISVILLE—If you like theater and drama where all the actors say clever lines and "ad lib" all over the place, you will enjoy a presidential press conference.

Last week while I was in Washington a dream of long standing became a thrilling reality. On Friday morning I went to the White House to a press conference! Of course I would never, never have gotten there under my own steam. Mr. Gladstone Williams, Washington correspondent for The Atlanta Constitution, very gallantly put himself to the bother, and probably the embarrassment, of arranging for this old country editor to see and be seen, at the greatest news source in all the world. For days I was in a state of excitement and uncertainty, thinking that the scheduled conference might be called off, or that Mr. Williams might repeat his generosity, or that I might fall in the snow and break a leg, or that the world might come to an end. Fortunately, none of these things happened and I was all dressed and ready when the press conference began.

The press people entered the White House grounds through the northwest gate. Several guards were standing at the big iron grille and right at the first gate I had a moment of terror lest something might happen to keep me from entering into the promised land. Several groups of writers and commentators were straggling up the gravel walk toward the executive wing where the President transacts business, and we walked with them. My teeth were chattering with excitement so I made a clean breast of the whole thing, telling him that I was nervous and scared to death and that I didn't know what I was supposed to do with my hands. I could quote anything that went on there in case anyone would listen to me tell about it. But I need not have been unduly troubled. Inside the White House everything was very casual and friendly and I forgot my fears and felt like part of an audience at a theater. Mr. Williams introduced me to several people who, in the course of polite conversation, asked what paper I represented. I said I was from Louisville and he said, "I could almost see his mind turning over and his belabored mental processes while he struggled to give me a 'build up' that would seem to justify my presence."

The waiting room was very large and in it I met a very big round old man where all the correspondents piled hats and coats. I didn't want to miss anything so I put my things there too. When I looked back at the table I noticed that the coats lay like spokes in a great wheel, and though the table was well loaded, you could still see the massive carvings underneath. Two shades of mahogany make the top of the table, with a small circle of inlay around the edge, and carved heads of water buffalo are visible from the sides. Mr. Williams told me that this interesting piece of furniture was the gift from the Philippines. It must be quite old because I noticed that a very large crack runs across the entire top of the table as if the wood had dried out and was splitting. As one whose best antique has a feeble leg, I was awfully glad to see that the drying out processes extend even into the Better Homes.

There was time to observe all these things as we were full early and the conference was full late. Because I was not a member of the "working press" (I suppose that means that as a newspaper woman I work my back rather than my head) we went into another room that serves as the cabinet chamber. A very long table centered the room and around it were placed twelve large leather chairs. I sat in one of the chairs and wondered about the important conferences that had been held and wished that the walls had been lined with mirrors. Finally there was a movement. A door was opened and the press people poured into the presidential presence.

The first part of the conference was entirely over my head and so I contented myself with looking about and craning over the tall shoulder in front of me. The room was round and very lovely. Along the walls were occasional recesses for books and as every shelf had guard wire I imagined that the books were very rare first editions. "No," someone told me when I asked later. "The books are nothing special. The screens are just by way of discouraging souvenir hunters." The President sat at a big oak desk in front of some windows and there were roses on the desk. His aides were near him and I saw Admiral Leahy, who had enough gold braid to make Lamour a cloth of gold dinner frock, and enough campaign ribbons and medals to start a museum. One look at him and I felt that the naval war was practically won and that our sailors were safe, God bless 'em!

One look at President Roosevelt and I felt that all I had heard about him being a "tired old man" was propaganda. God bless him! True, he looked older. But don't we all? And he seemed much thinner, but his voice was as vibrant and his laugh as infectious as it was eight years ago. I thought he looked like a man having a grand time. He put on quite a show giving too-inquisitive reporters the old run-around and telling funny stories. One reporter asked, "As Mr. Churchill is planning to take Anthony Eden to the forthcoming Big Three conference, will you take Mr. Stettinius?" When the President suggested that he clear the question through the State Department, he said, "But the department told me to clear with the White House." A roar of laughter went up when Mr. Big again passed the buck.

Many questions hurled back and forth about Mr. Wallace's new job but that story did not break at this conference. The most amusing bit of byplay had to do with the fourth term.

"On this the last full day of your third term," one reporter asked, "have you any observations about the past three administrations?" The room grew tense with expectancy. Pencils were poised over pads and you could see ears standing out to hear the words of the oracle. I confess that I braced myself for some high-sounding phrases.

Then, in that waiting stillness, Mr. Big made his classic remark about the "first twelve years being the hardest." The tension broke and a gale of laughter swept the room. Quick as a flash a reporter down at the right said, "Mr. President, may I ask if there is any special significance in your use of the word 'first'?"

Some reporter near the desk suddenly shut his notebook and said, "Thank you, Mr. President," and I realized that the conference was over. Just as I was having such a good time, too!

The sports columns note the death of a man named Sheldon who discovered Tris Speaker. As has been remarked of Columbus the fear of finding America, "How could he miss?"

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Home Rule Merely Means Local Self Government

In the demand for limited home rule, the people and the press have in mind five major abuses that they want corrected.

1. They want to prevent the passage, without the knowledge of the people in the community to be affected, of purely local legislation.

2. They want to prevent the passage of legislation to put officials out of office, whom the people have elected, in order to settle political feuds.

3. They want purely local matters, that in no way affect the rest of the state, taken out of the hands of the legislators, so that the main attention of the members of the general assembly may be devoted to statewide affairs.

4. They want it made clear that local officials are responsible for purely local matters, so that there will be an end of dodging responsibility, or passing the buck.

5. They want local matters decided at home, in the belief that it is the best way to avoid unnecessary centralization of government.

How can these reforms be brought about? The first step will be to adopt the home-rule amendment as proposed by the Constitutional Revision Commission.

Before the commission adopted this amendment, it had attempted to correct some of the abuses mentioned above, by patching several sections of the present constitution.

In order to prevent the passage of secret local legislation, an attempt was made to strengthen requirements that such proposals be advertised, before passage. Knowing that this is of little real value because the advertisements tell nothing, the commission decided to recommend that there would be no change affecting local officials who had been elected by the people, unless this change was submitted to vote of the people and passed.

There was another recommendation that local constitutional amendments must be passed by a vote of the people in the community to be affected, before being submitted to a state-wide vote. At times in the past local amendments have been passed by a state-wide vote, when the majority of the voters in the community to be affected did not want the change.

Zoning powers of counties and cities were made broader. It soon became obvious that all of these patches did not do the job that needs to be done. So the commission adopted a home-rule amendment. This amendment provides several things:

1. That the legislature shall continue to have the power to pass general laws defining the organization, powers and duties of counties and cities.

2. That on matters about which there is no general law, the legislature can still continue to pass special laws affecting a local community and certain of the laws so passed must be submitted to the people before they become effective.

3. In a completely new section, it provides that if this amendment is passed by the legislature and by the people, then the people of a local community can vote to have a small measure of home-rule. When the people of a city or town vote to come under this last provision, it will mean that the legislature will still have the responsibility to pass general laws which affect cities and counties all over the state, but instead of permitting legislators to decide purely local matters, these matters will be the responsibility of locally elected officials (mayor, council, county commissioners, ordinary, as the case may be), because they will affect only the one particular community.

4. It further gives the people the right to get up a petition requesting their officials to submit a matter to the vote of the people. As recommended by the commission such a petition would have to be signed by 1% of the registered voters. In other states requirements vary from 10% to 25% of the registered voters. In the Atlanta charter, such a petition requires signatures of only 15% of the registered voters, and it has been used only twice. Mr. Gowen, of Brunswick, says that his community has never used theirs, so it is hard to understand why some members of the legislature fear to trust the people with this initiative power.

There will be a great deal of talk about this home-rule amendment. It is not a simple problem, but it can be solved and it is important that the voters understand what this proposal means, because a lot of inaccurate statements are being made by those who are against it. Under the present constitution, the legislature has had the right for 70 years to take some steps toward limited home-rule. No progress has been made, therefore the legislature should give the people a chance to vote on it to see if they want it in the constitution.

ALL IN THE GAME JACK TROY

Donald L. Barnes ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga.—(By Mail)—In this old hotbed of fast baseball competition, the fans of Brunswick and surrounding territory, along with the average fan of this country, are wondering about the chances of the St. Louis Browns repeating next summer.

The Browns won their first pennant in American League history a season ago, of course. Like every other team, the Browns will be leaning on the verdict of the powers that be in government relative to the ultimate disposition of 4-F athletes. The Browns have 18 men previously rejected for service in the armed forces.

However, regardless of the critical manpower situation and the question of who will play what, the Browns still have an ace in the hole in their forceful, dynamic and highly progressive owner-president, Donald L. Barnes.

Just 50 years ago in Springfield, Ill., Don Barnes donned his three-cornered pants and began to develop his lungs for a plain and fancy bleacher baseball rooting career.

Now Don wasn't much of an athlete himself. Like a lot of younger brothers he walked in the shade of a mighty brother athlete, who won state sprint championships and starred on the Springfield High school football team.

"I couldn't do the tricks with a ball that my brother, Lyle, could, so I thought I'd better start owning and managing athletic teams," Barnes pointed out to friends.

Meanwhile, in a field far removed from baseball, Barnes was hitting the jackpot and laying the foundation for a fortune. In the field of finance Barnes finally achieved a prominent position and a reputation for outstanding business acumen among the bankers of the state of Illinois.

In seeking a larger city than his home town in which to base the home office of his financial operations, the jovial Browns' owner moved his organization to St. Louis.

At this time the St. Louis Browns' team was owned by Philip deCadeby Ball and outside of a brief upsurge in 1922, the Browns had been getting nowhere fast. It was around 1925, as I recall it, that the club drew well under 100,000 paid admissions for the season.

Successful Plan In the fall of 1936, Don Barnes determined to give to the city of St. Louis a representative entry in the American League race. He bought the Browns. The organization was rundown, team morale was at a low ebb and St. Louis fans were interested only in what the rival St. Louis Cardinals were doing. There was no national interest in the team.

As a matter of fact, about this time, Barnes was visiting in small town in Ohio. He had had a busy day and came back to his hotel room hot and tired. As he usually did, he picked up the telephone receiver and got in touch with the desk clerk.

"What are the scores of the baseball games today?" Barnes asked.

The clerk gave him the Brooklyn-Cardinals score, the New York Yankees-Red Sox result, the Washington-Cleveland score. In turn, he gave him every major league outcome, with the exception of the St. Louis Browns.

"Thanks," said the patient Barnes. "But what did the Browns do?"

A weary voice responded, "Who cares what the Browns do?"

This gives you some idea of what Barnes was up against in those days. But things are mighty different now. Barnes had a plan. And he put it into effect.

With better breaks, Barnes might have made it St. Louis' first American League world's champion. Yes, that play by Cardinal pitcher, Donnelly, at third, nipping McQuinn, could have been called either way. Galehouse's indecision in fielding a pop bunt also hurt. If any one or two plays can decide a series, and it has happened, these two stand out boldly in the defeat of the Browns in the all-St. Louis World Series.

The Browns were a little run down at the heels. Their cuffs were frayed. But look at 'em now. There's money in the bank and they're buying players. That Don Barnes is quite a guy. He's got the winning habit.

Leavys and the Col. I seldom ever go to Brunswick without dropping in for a visit with the Leavys, of the Brunswick News, and Col. W. H. Berry, news editor, editorial writer and make-up expert.

The Leavy family runs the famous 44-year-old News, which long has exerted a profound influence in this community. The News is noted for its vigorous but fair editorial policy. Brunswick and surrounding territory has become a better place to live because of the influence of the News.

Louis J. Leavy Jr. is a baseball fan of the old school. We had a long talk about the old days of baseball when Nap Rucker, Ty Cobb, the late Trammell Scott and so many others performed in this section.

It was with a great deal of pleasure, more than a year ago, that I learned Owner Clarence H. Leavy had hired Col. Berry. I have a great admiration for the colonel. He was the first man who took the time to tell a struggling young cub some of the things that are necessary to know in the newspaper game. I will never forget him. He is a very able newspaper man and a credit to the profession.

There aren't too many of the real veterans left.

Col. Berry, known by most of the newspapermen of South Georgia and Florida, always had a sympathetic nature. And he wanted to see "his boys" get ahead. He is a grand gentleman.

Illini Five Hands Iowa First Loss

Conference Leaders
In All Sections
Face Stern Tests

By TED MEIER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Competition is fierce this winter among the various college basketball conferences and virtually all are in tight races, with the current leaders liable to stumble daily.

Typical of the free-for-all scramble was Iowa's 43-42 defeat by Illinois the past week. It was their first loss of the season after 10 straight victories and threw the Big Ten Conference race into a four-way push between the Hawkeyes, Ohio State, Illinois and Wisconsin. Each has lost only one league game. Underdog Wisconsin upset the 12-point favorite, Northwestern, 44-43, last night.

South Carolina, Duke and Richmond all are unbeaten in the Southern Conference, with the Gamecocks temporarily on top by virtue of having played more games. They whipped The Citadel, 59-51, yesterday, while Duke nearly upset unbeaten Navy before losing a non-league game, 54-53.

TENNESSEE PACING SEC

Tennessee, 4-0, paces the Southeastern Circuit, with Kentucky and Alabama close behind. Kentucky, previously beaten only by Tennessee, lost, 59-58, to Notre Dame in an extra-period thriller last night in a non-conference game.

In the Southwest Conference, Rice beat Arkansas twice to hang on to first place by one game over Texas Christian. Rice is unbeaten in six league games, while TCU has a 5-1 and Southern Methodist a 4-2 mark.

Colorado and Utah are engaged in a nip-and-tuck battle in the Big Seven sector. Both are unbeaten. Oklahoma tops the Big Six with 4-1, but expects to be tied by Kansas when the Jayhawks tangle with Kansas State Tuesday.

Oregon jumped to the top in the northern division of the Pacific Coast Conference as the roof fell in on Washington. The Seattle five started the week in first place with a 4-0 record, but lost four straight to Oregon State and Oregon to drop behind Oregon, 7-2, and Oregon State, 4-3.

TEJANS GET FIRST LOSS

Southern California also suffered its first defeat in the southern half of the coast conference, but despite a 41-36 setback by UCLA only fell into a tie with the UCLAs.

Pennsylvania took undisputed possession of first place in the Eastern Intercollegiate League by beating Dartmouth, but can be tied by Cornell this week.

In the country at large, Army and Navy continued unbeaten, 6-0 and 5-0, respectively, with the West Point Cadets making it 22 straight over a three-year span. Rensselaer Poly, 9-0, also stayed unbeaten in the east, but Albright dropped from the elite ranks by losing to once-beaten Muhlenberg, 59-54.

Indian Threat To Mat Champ

The match scheduled for Saturday night between Wild Bill Longson, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Big Chief Saunooke, his foremost challenger, is expected to be one of the best ever staged at the city auditorium.

The chief, a Cherokee Indian from Cherokee, N. C., weighing 346 pounds, is one of the strongest men in the game today and is rated by most of the experts as the man who may eventually lift the crown from Wild Bill.

The two men met here last fall in what was considered one of the hardest-fought bouts ever staged at the city auditorium. The chief had all the best of the going for most of the match, but was finally felled with a well-directed dropkick after 28 minutes. This was the longest that any challenger had stayed with Longson since he captured the title from Bobby Middlekaut two years ago.

Promoter Paul Jones says that this match is a natural. The tremendous weight advantage carried by the Indian should offset the ring experience enjoyed by the 245-pound Longson.

Three other outstanding heavyweight matches will be contested on the program. Advance ticket sales will be handled by Piedmont Hatters.

La Fata Sets Record In Bell Pin League

Joe La Fata of the service division team hung up a new season's record for high individual game last week in Bell Aircraft's Supervision bowling league with a total of 207, five pins better than the former record set by Willis Howell of Tool Control.

Service Division won two of three from Wing Assembly, but Engineering No. 2 dropped two to the leading Engineering No. 3 team as C. O. Penn smashed 513 pins for high individual series only a dozen pins short of his season's record of 525 which was tied by Ruth Howard of Engineering No. 1.

Tool Control had 741 for the high team single game this week and 2131 for high team series, and is tied for third place in the league with Engineering No. 2.

Grantville Splits

The Grantville cagers split a double-header with Franklin in Franklin Friday night, the Grantville lasses bowing by the score of 26-8. The Grantville boys more than evened things up, however, by wallowing Franklin, 33-12.

Four Big 7 Teams Clash Tuesday Night

By RUSSELL MUSGRAVE.

Four of the leading teams in the Big Seven conference meet tomorrow night on the Henry Grady court in a doubleheader that could play havoc in the current standings. Boys' High faces Jordan High, of Columbus, and Tech's Smithies clash with Columbus High.

League-leading Jordan will have to hogle the Purple's scoring ace, Tommy Touchstone, to win. Tommy has scored 68 points in his last two games and right now is hotter than a firecracker. He and his mates are a real threat to the unbeaten league leaders.

Tech High is favored over Columbus in the opening game at 7 p. m. by virtue of its win over this same team at Columbus earlier in the season.

Russell and Commercial High boys are still in the vanguard of the NGIC league, with neither team having lost a game. Both teams are facing strong rivals this week, and may find the going a bit rough when Russell takes on Fulton Friday night on the Wildcat court, and Commercial challenges the improving Decatur Bulldogs tonight Wednesday afternoon.

Druid Hills lasses, NGIC leaders, play a fairly easy game with the Hapeville sextet Friday after Hapeville in the opening game at Druid Hills Tuesday afternoon.

Writers Fail To Name Hall-of-Fame Players

By GLEN PERKINS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(UP)—The Baseball Writers' Association of America failed to elect any new members to baseball's hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., in its sixth annual balloting for nominations, it was announced tonight.

No player received the 75 per cent of the ballots necessary for election to the shrine of the game's immortals. It was the first time since the balloting began in 1936 that no player was named.

Each writer voted for 10 players who have been active since 1900 but who did not play last year. Frank Chance, former manager of the Chicago Cubs and first baseman in the famous "Tinker to Evers to Chance" double-play combination, came the closest to receiving the needed number of votes. Chance's name appeared on 179 of the 247 ballots; only seven short of the required number.

Johnny Evers, also a member of the double-play combination, was fourth on the list and Joe Tinker was in the first 20. Rube Waddell, the left-handed strikeout king in the early 1900s, was second with 154 votes and Eddie Walsh, another pitcher, was third with 137 votes.

GIAA Tourney Dates Are Set

MACON, Ga., Jan. 28.—(P)—The Georgia Interscholastic Athletic Association today voted to hold its annual basketball tournament in Columbus Feb. 21 through Feb. 24.

Eleven teams will be entered in the tournament—Richmond Academy, Augusta; Lanier High school, Macon; Boys' High, Tech High, Marietta, North Fulton and Georgia Military Academy, Atlanta; Jordan High and Columbus High, Columbus; Savannah High, Savannah; and Riverside Military Academy, Gainesville.

All games will be played at night.

Columbus, Jordan, Boys' High and Lanier were seeded in the draw, and drew first round byes. Savannah High also drew a bye.

The pairings in the upper bracket are: Columbus High vs. Bye, Tech High vs. GMA, Marietta vs. North Fulton, Jordan High vs. Bye.

In the lower bracket: Boys' High school vs. Bye, Riverside vs. Richmond Academy, Savannah vs. Bye.

Ed. Quinn of Savannah and Lt. Macomber of Atlanta were named the two officials and Sgt. Beigard and Karl Bowden of Columbus as first and second alternates.

SOCCER MEET NEXT

Eight High Schools To Enter Tourney

The soccer tournament, scheduled to start Thursday afternoon at Russell High, will be the next big inter-school event on The Constitution-sponsored Greater Atlanta High School program.

Both boys and girls events will be run off at the same time. Weyman Tucker, director of the program, announced that the games will be short in order that the entire tournament may be run off in one afternoon. The first event is slated to start at 4 p. m. Inclement weather has handicapped the intra-school soccer programs at most of the high schools, but a very interesting program is anticipated in the championships at Russell Thursday.

Six or eight schools are expected to participate. In the pre-tournament competition, Druid Hills and North Fulton have had the greatest number of participants.

On the basis of minor sports tournaments completed thus far, the point total of the schools stand as follows: Druid Hills, 225; North Fulton, 125; Decatur, 100; College Park, 75; West Fulton, 50; Hapeville, 50; Fulton, 50; Campbell, 25.

Three other minor sports tournaments are scheduled for later in the season. They are touch football, tennis and softball.

Director Tucker says it's far too early to make a prediction as to which will be the honor school, but at the present time, Russell High is leading in major sports and Druid Hills in minor sports.

Byrd Winner In Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 28. (P)—Sturdy Sam Byrd, who quit a big league baseball career because he figures the percentage was higher in golf, cashed in on his judgment again today as he swept in with a 16-under-par 268 to win the Texas open by a stroke over favored Byron Nelson.

The Detroit professional shot a 68-66 in the final 36 holes to beat out the great Nelson, who had started today's play a stroke ahead of the former New York Yankee outfielder.

Nelson took a 68-66, failing to sink a 60-foot putt on the last hole that would have brought him a tie and a playoff for the $1,000 first prize. The Toledo, Ohio, pro took down $700 second money.

Winding up in third place today was Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who shot a 69-66 to give him a score of 270. He won $550.

Glimpses of HOLLYWOOD

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

Dorothy McGuire And John Swope Plan Trip Abroad

HOLLYWOOD — Dorothy McGuire and husband, John Swope, are planning to go abroad as a news-photographer team, Dotty to do the writing, Johnny to use his camera on the war front. The war office is usually opposed to husband and wife teams—it still has not forgotten the Humphrey Bogart-Mayo Methuon uproar on the African front last year. But I have a hunch Dorothy soon will be off to the wars with her husband. This means, of course, that Movie Boss David Selznick will have to wait a long time before Dorothy works again in a picture.

Maria Montez will inaugurate a new idea on the ether. She will be all dressed up in a southern costume for "Fiesta," her planned radio show under the auspices of "Doublejohn Productions." The half-hour program will last an hour with the audience getting a half-hour warm-up before hitting the air. Later on, the show will be made into a movie with the title, "Fiesta." Maria plays a Spanish girl in a little town. Maria, incidentally, is in the middle of writing her first novel, "Forever Is a Long Time" which she swears is not biographical.

Now that Jack Oakie has lost his wife, Venita, for keeps, he shortly will enter a sanitarium to endeavor to lose 30 pounds of weight. "I'm in the market again," says Jackie, and he wants to look attractive. Believe it or not, he does—when he is thin. As a final gesture, Mrs. Oakie gave away the $25,000 worth of dogs Jack bought her in the heyday of their love, keeping only one.

William Bendix says that something has gone wrong with his plan to adopt a baby boy to go with the baby girl he recently took into his home. "My wife is going east to see if she can straighten things out," says Bill. . . . Lt. Tyrone Power spotted at Palm Springs during the weekend to shed a persistent cold. Recent rumors are to the effect that when the war is over, wife Annabella will be putting "ex" before her name. The war and prolonged separation are hard on marriage. . . . Linda Darnell's husband, Fev Marley, is sick with acute bronchitis and cannot work at his cameraman job on "This Love of Ours."

Jane Ball is denying with justification the rumors that the mink coat she is wearing was bought by Monte Prosser. . . . The Lana Turner-Turhan Bey marriage is an event of 1945. This is definite. . . . June Allyson is sick with a sore throat and she won't call in a doctor. "Because he'll tell me to go to bed and give up cigarettes which I can't do because I have no will power." You'd better do it all the same, June. There is no sense in spoiling a promising career. At the moment, June is an unhappy girl. Something has gone wrong with her romance with Dick Powell.

The WORRY CLINIC
By Dr. GEORGE W. CRANE

(Enuresis causes many warped personalities. It often persists into high school age groups or occasionally into adulthood. Many boys who wish to attend Boy Scout camps are unable to do so because they are slaves to the sphincter muscles of the bladder.)

CASE E-273: Harry T., aged 28, is a soldier.

"I know of two cases where fellows were debarred from military service because of enuresis or bed-wetting," he said.

"Are there many cases like this? What would cause it to be a condition? Can such cases be cured or are they hopeless if they have continued into adulthood?"

DIAGNOSIS
Enuresis is one of the bugsboos of most parents who have two or three children, for at least one of them may persist in bed-wetting until grammar school age, or even later.

The cure for this problem is usually psychological. The urinary bladder is a storage tank. When it becomes distended, it begins to register pain sensations, thus calling our attention to the advisability of hunting a toilet.

But it is very easy for a child to ignore these warning sensations, and then sleep right through the night in a wet bed.

Once a child develops the habit of ignoring his urinary bladder sensations at night, then it becomes difficult to make him become responsible for his own toilet function in this regard.

To illustrate the psychological mechanism behind bed-wetting, we can refer you to the adult who will sleep through the ringing of an alarm clock and never react to it.

He may vow that the alarm never went off, although other members of the family know that it did.

If a husband, for example, then learns to rely upon his wife to waken him when he ignores the alarm clock, he is demonstrating the same situation as that of the bed-wetter, who ignores the bladder warnings and depends on his parents to get him up.

When a child is becoming a confirmed bed-wetter, therefore, it does him harm to have his parents take over the responsibility of getting him up at night, for he learns to lean upon them, instead of asserting his own independence.

Besides, he may not waken fully, so the next morning he doesn't even know that you ever got him up to go to the bathroom. If a child or adult who is a victim of enuresis, will resolutely vow that he is no longer going to be a slave to this nuisance habit, he can quickly cure himself.

First, he should try the alarm clock method. He himself should wind and set the alarm to go off about one or two hours after he retires.

Then he must jump out of bed and go to the bathroom! The next night he can repeat the process but set the alarm clock for a little later hour. After a week, he can be sleeping through the entire night successfully.

But he must not rely on mamma to set the alarm and then call him to get up when it starts ringing. He must quit leaning on his relatives, and take over the entire responsibility himself. That is the crux of the entire problem.

There is also a homemade type of electrical shocking device that you can construct to help break this habit. Send for my "Nuro-clast" bulletin, enclosing a 3c stamped envelope, plus dime. Use it if the alarm clock method fails, for the Nuro-clast is perfectly safe even for toddlers.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Constitution, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you send for one of his psychological charts.)

Hats This Spring Will Be Colorful, Very Individual

By WINIFRED WARE.

The most exciting event in a woman's fashion year is the selection of her spring hat. What type of hat shall crown her curly locks or frame her pretty face always is important to a woman, but her first spring hat is of major importance. Perhaps it is because flowers usually bloom in profusion on the gay springtime bonnets, and flowers complement a woman's face and hair, enhancing her feminine look.

Hats of this spring are so varied and beautiful it is difficult to generalize about them. But if one must, they can best be described by two words, pretty and individual. There is much color, there are many flowers and bright ribbons, coy little birdcage veils, and many little sailors, some worn back off the forehead and some to be worn tilted over the forehead.

But whatever the type, the hat is pretty—it is the sole purpose in this world is to make its wearer look lovelier in her own individual way. That way, however, must always remain feminine, for never have American fashions been more beautifully and artfully feminine than they are this spring.

The sequin glitter has gone and with it the other equally obvious attempts to attract attention which usually appear in the early months of a war. Beau-catching this season depends upon the most fatal of all things, feminine prettiness. Hats are of all sizes, but most of them are rather smallish.

Miss Cornwell Betrothed To Maj. Robert R. Pregnall Jr.

The cordial interest of a host of friends throughout Georgia and South Carolina centers in the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Fiedler Cornwell of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ann Cora Cornwell, to Major Robert Richardson Pregnall Jr., Coast Artillery Corps, Army of the United States, of Charleston, South Carolina.

The bride-elect is a representative of families well known in Georgia. Her maternal grandparents are Mrs. Methvin Thomson Salter, pioneer Atlantans. Her father, Mr. Pliny Fiedler Cornwell, is a graduate of Girls' High school. She is also a graduate of the University of Georgia, where she was elected to Alpha Lambda Delta, national honorary scholastic society. She is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority, in which she was vice president during her senior year. Mrs. Vendrell Lynn Spargur, the former Miss Marcia Estelle Cornwell, is her only sister.

Major Pregnall is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Richard Pregnall, of Charleston. His mother, the former Miss Christiana Mary Sheppard, is the daughter of the late John Leith and Margaret Henderson Gilliland Sheppard. His paternal grandparents were the late Samuel James and Frances Elizabeth Richardson Pregnall.

Major Pregnall was graduated from The Citadel, Charleston, S. C., in 1939. His brothers are Maj.

FEATHERED SIREN—This pet hen, Bobby by name, acts like a gold-digger. Here she is with a toy chicken. Bobby is the pet of Prof. and Mrs. Hal C. Brown.

FEATHERED SIREN Pet Hen Acts Like Gold Digger

By STERLING SLAPPEY.

If "Bobby" were a human being, she would make a wonderful gold-digger glamour girl. As it is, "Bobby" is just a smart chicken, belonging to Professor and Mrs. Hal C. Brown, of 729 Brittain drive. She defies the old saying, "Aw, she ain't got biddie brains," and combines all the attributes of a pretty smart gal who knows how to get what she wants.

"Bobby" doesn't take her beer and hard liquor straight; she likes it diluted, preferably soaked in white bread. When she has had enough of two, she gets mean and kicks up a fuss.

She is highly jealous of anything chicken, and the 70-odd toy chickens decorating the Brown home live a rugged existence with "Bobby" pecking and clawing at them. Competition for Mrs. Brown's affection won't be tolerated by "Bobby."

IRE VENTED

Mrs. Brown has one toy chicken that lays a marble egg when a lever is pressed. "Bobby" vents her most particular noisy brand of ire whenever anyone pays any attention to the toy chick.

"Bobby," a bantam hen, will be 12 years old Easter Week and is a genuine rarity among chickens. Each quill splits into a double feather. She sleeps on the Browns' front porch, in a doghouse-like box, but stays inside during the day. One of "Bobby's" favorite pastimes, like gold digging, is riding in automobiles. She once made a trip to Albuquerque, N. M., in the back seat of the Brown car, and thoroughly enjoyed the whole trip.

The rare chicken operates best at night, as do gold diggers. Mrs. Brown said "Bobby" won't go through her paces until after dark. "Bobby" believes in being neat and whenever the paper towel in the bottom of her box is soiled, "Bobby" struts into the kitchen, gets a new one and replaces it with the dirty towel. She loves nose drops, especially a well-known patent medicine brand, and mutters a slow, low cackle while the drops run down her chicken nose.

WANTS CEREAL

For breakfast "Bobby" insists with loud and wild cackles, on a cereal, with cream. She has lettuce, scrambled eggs and colored oleomargarine. Unless the "oleo" has been colored, "Bobby" won't touch it. Mrs. Brown said she is quite fastidious about her food.

One of "Bobby's" worst faults, and one Mrs. Brown has been trying for years to break her of, is getting out of bed in a bad humor. Every morning, especially when it's cold, "Bobby" has to be roused from her pallet with emphasis or she will "turn around" and go back to sleep.

When "Bobby" is irritated at some exasperating, aggravating human being, she ruffles up her feathers around her neck and pecks at anything that comes near her. She doesn't have a particularly sweet disposition.

Only two things will quiet her—a sun bath under the reading lamp, or a whiff of expensive perfume—just like a gold-digger.

"Bobby" had a sister who was almost as smart as she is, but "Skeeter," the sister, died four years ago. Both the chickens were given to Prof. and Mrs. Brown in College Park when they were biddies.

Prof. Brown teaches in the English department at Georgia Tech, and Mrs. Brown is head of the home economics department at Murphy Junior High school.

Splendid Cough Syrup Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.
To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix this recipe in your own kitchen. Once tried you'll never be without it and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, known for its effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Features Complete Protection

Limited Policies Only Partly Cover Those Insured

The Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Association of Omaha, Neb., which has state offices for Georgia, in charge of Roy F. Morgan, manager, 315-22 William-Oliver building, Atlanta, has been the pioneer of full and complete protection against loss of time and income from sickness or accident instead of limited policies which pay for only certain diseases and accidents.

The Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Association was founded on the idea that people who are going to be sick or injured do not know what kind of sickness or accident might disable them, and they therefore need a policy which will cover all sicknesses and accidents instead of just certain types of disabilities stipulated in the policy. The policies also pay benefits from the first day of disability and continuing for an unlimited period, even for life in case of total disability from accident or confining sickness.

"In buying a health and accident income protection or hospitalization policy, a person should

POLICEMAN'S WIDOW PAID $3,000 under Mutual Benefit Health & Accident policy. A. B. McNaughton, a patrolman with the Atlanta police department, was insured under a Mutual Benefit Health & Accident policy which paid $3,000 for accidental death. He was accidentally killed recently in an automobile accident and the above check was promptly issued to his widow, Mrs. A. B. McNaughton. A large portion of Atlanta policemen have their accident, health and hospital insurance with this company.

study the actual wording of the contract very carefully to determine whether it only partially covers or completely covers all sicknesses and accidents. A health and accident or hospital policy which just pays for stated accidents would be the same thing as a fire insurance policy which would pay only in case fires were ignited in a certain manner. It would also be the same in comparison to a life insurance policy which would pay in case the policyholder died from stated accidents or sickness instead of for any accident or sickness," says Mr. Morgan.

This company is backed by assets exceeding $35,000,000. Over 30,000 Georgians are policyholders and thousands of them have been paid benefits during past years, as total benefits paid to Georgia policyholders exceed $2,500,000, and benefits are paid out of the Atlanta office to Georgia policyholders at the rate of more than $1,500 per day at present.

The liberal protection offered by the Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Association and the prompt service it gives its policyholders, even under wartime conditions on payment of claims and other matters, has caused its business to increase more than 400 per cent in Georgia in the last five years. Sickness and accident benefits paid during 1944 alone are nearly $500,000.

Tune in on Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Association's radio program over the Mutual Network each Friday evening at 7:30 p. m. The name of the program is "Freedom of Opportunity," and it features the lives of prominent men and women.

For information concerning a complete coverage health and accident income policy which protects you 24 hours a day and pays one day to life in benefits, or on hospitalization for individuals or family groups, write Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Association, P. O. Box 1418, Atlanta 1, Georgia, or if in Atlanta call Walnut 9577.

A new series of children's skating classes will begin on Saturday, February 3, from 1:30 until 2:30 for children ages 8 to 14, who are able to skate by themselves.

For the first time in the history of Georgia skating rinks, a figure skating class will be conducted under the supervision of Miss Phyllis Sprock, professional instructor at the RollerDrome. Classes will begin on Saturday, February 3 at 5:30 until 7 p. m. Dance skating also will be featured during this session. Miss Sprock is also available for private instruction at your convenience.

Fine Pharmacy Service by Leeds At the Biltmore

Rated among Atlanta's best and most modern drug stores—a "Store of Personal Service"—Biltmore Pharmacy, in the Biltmore hotel, is drawing a large share of the patronage of northsiders, due to its complete stocks of drug merchandise and to the prompt service always available.

Dr. R. D. Leeds, owner and personal manager, has closely followed the policy of "no off-brands or long-profit merchandise" to push off on his trade. The owner of this popular pharmacy—and also the Rhodes Center Pharmacy—prides himself on his selection of such merchandise as should be carried in an up-to-the-minute drug store.

One of the features of Dr. Leeds' pharmacy is the ample and fine selection of cosmetics always in stock. These, just as are his drug supplies, are selected with care, and are of the standard, high type that makes strong appeal to the ladies. In fact, perhaps no similar store in the city offers a wider and more popular appeal to lady patrons than does the line of cosmetics carried in stock by the Biltmore Pharmacy. This well-known northside drug store has grown into one of the city's largest and most dependable for prescription work. It is widely recognized and commended for its prompt and accurate work of filling prescriptions just as the physician requires. In this department can always be found two experienced registered pharmacists. They are on duty at all times when the doors of the store are open. On its shelves, ready for the preparation of any kind of prescription, Dr. Leeds has stored every known drug material for accurate, reliable prescription work.

HANDSOME CHENILLE SPREADS—Here is shown S. J. Williams, owner and manager of the new Chenille Shop, at 686 North Highland avenue, corner of Ponce de Leon, showing a prospective customer, Mrs. C. D. Page, the beauty of one of the chenille bedspreads he is offering. He also has bathrobes, mats, toys, etc., of the same material.

Pretty Chenille Products Fill Williams' Shop

By PRESS HUDDLESTON

Much has been said and written about the north Georgia industry in chenille products.

Motorists riding through the north side of Georgia in the past have noted and admired the large number of chenille bedspreads, mats, robes, and the like, hanging in the yards of humble mountain homes, created by the people of that section. Many travelers have bought freely of these pretty articles, created from cotton and cotton yarns—some handmade, some woven on machines—and taken them back to their western and northern homes, not only as souvenirs of Georgia but as valuable and useful articles.

But it has remained for S. J. Williams to open a retail shop in Atlanta, carrying a complete stock of these pretty and useful chenille products, manufactured right here almost in our midst by the hands of Georgia folks.

Some four months ago Mr. Williams opened his chenille shop at 686 North Highland avenue, N. E., in the Plaza building, corner Ponce de Leon and Highland avenues.

Starting in a small way, this far-seeing merchant is building a large trade in his newly opened place on ladies' and misses' and children's chenille robes, running in price for as low as $4.98, and up. Then he has in stock handsome bedspreads, some as low in price as $6.98. In addition, there are mats of varying sizes and colors.

Many of the articles carried in stock by Mr. Williams are handmade, while some are machine woven. Some of the spreads are made on the skipped-stitch process, and are greatly admired by housewives who like a beautiful spread for their bed. There are many multicolors on white and on solid colors.

Mr. Williams conceived the idea of such a store here when he traveled as a salesman through north Georgia, and was frequently requested by friends to bring bedspreads or robes or mats back to Atlanta from his trips.

There is a ceiling price on every chenille item he handles, but by

Grady Employees Seeking Means To Hold Pension

Preservation of civil service and pension rights for employees of Grady and allied hospitals when the Fulton-DeKalb county hospital authority begins functioning is the subject of concerted study by attorneys representing the various interests, and a meeting is slated for 4 p. m. tomorrow, at which a solution of the problem will be sought.

Preliminary consideration of the matters which must be ironed out before the authority actually takes over has been begun, and among the matters demanding especial study is the preservation of civil service and retirement privileges which employees of the city enjoy and which sponsors of the authority wish to preserve.

Sumner M. Keller, attorney for the authority; J. Charlie Murphy, assistant city attorney, and Harold Sheats, Fulton county attorney, already have held preliminary discussions of civil service and retirement matters, and have taken the whole problem under advisement. It is expected that they will have canvasses of existing laws thoroughly by Tuesday's meeting and will be in a position to propose additional laws if they are needed.

The session will be held in the office of Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the Grady hospital board of trustees, who is expected to head the authority when it is activated.

Fulton and DeKalb counties and the Atlanta City government have agreed to implement the authority immediately, and the attorneys are now perfecting details incident to negotiation of contracts with the various governments through which the authority will operate for 30 years.

Physiotherapy Meeting

The Georgia Chapter of the American Physiotherapy Association will meet at Lawson General hospital at 4 p. m. Saturday. Dinner will be served at 6 p. m., followed by a symposium on nerve injuries and amputations.

Industrial Review

going personally to the manufacturers and buying his stock, bringing his articles back by his own transportation, he is able, in practical all cases, to sell even below the ceiling price.

A feature of the line carried by the Chenille Shop is its stock of pretty toys, covered with chenille in many colors. There are dolls, and pigs, and puppies, and many other animals—just the kind of toys that are so dear to the hearts of children.

As stated, the Williams' Chenille Shop is building a fast-growing trade, as his articles are not only attractive and long-wearing, but he is offering to Atlanta housewives a splendid line of pretty articles made right here in the mountain section of Georgia.

4th Ward League Pushes Program For Youth Center

Success of the Capitol View Youth Center Inc., the first incorporated organization to combat spread of juvenile delinquency in Georgia, is the prime consideration of the Fourth Ward Civic League, co-sponsor of the center along with young people of the community, Ernest Brewer, president of the league, has announced in designating 12 of the most active and influential members to serve as an advisory board.

Former City Alderman Charles M. Ford is president of the corporation and heads the special committee charged with the conduct of the youth organization. The Rev. John W. Eynon, pastor of the Capitol View Christian church, is vice chairman.

Serving with Ford and Eynon and Brewer are Pat C. Lynch, Mrs. W. S. Turnipseed, Mrs. Myrtle O'Brien Baker, W. H. (Tubby) Walton, W. D. Meadors, R. A. McAuliffe, former City Councilman Ed G. Deckner, B. H. Ragan and City Clerk Joe L. Richardson.

Deckner is treasurer of the corporation, and under his leadership more than 100 members of the center have launched an intensive campaign to complete payment of $3,500 for property at 647 Dill avenue, S. W., which already has been purchased as a home for the center and its activities.

Deckner believes that the center will become the first in Georgia to own its own headquarters, and predicts that the organization will be debt-free before the end of the year.

Jake Brewer, son of the president of the civic league, is president of the youth center, which is a rather exclusive organization admitting youngsters of good character from the Adair park, Sylvan Hills and Capitol View sections of the city.

The youth center was organized last year, when young people of the community asked the Fourth Ward Civic League to help them organize to provide wholesome entertainment. More than 100 attend the gatherings each Saturday night.

Other committee chairmen named by Brewer are:

E. B. Barron, police and fire; C. W. Watson, postwar improvement and planning; Pat C. Lynch, program and entertainment; Mrs. J. J. Wilkes, membership; R. A. McAuliffe, parks and playgrounds; Ed G. Deckner, improvements; Mrs. W. S. Turnipseed, schools; E. L. Webb, transportation; W. Comer Davis, special Capitol View Manor committee, to assist in development of land lying between the Manor and Pryor road so as to preserve property values by preventing undesirable encroachments.

Our men need 6 million more yards of blankets

THE winter's war has been bitter and tough in Europe. Uniforms and blankets anticipated to last 5 months are only wearing half that time in the frozen mud and snow and hard fighting. So, an emergency order for 6 million additional yards of blanketing material was recently issued by the Army. In the manufacture of these blankets tons of special soaps are used—and fats are vitally needed to make these soaps.

Fats are also essential in the making of hundreds of battlefield and home-front needs, such as explosives, medicines, paints and bullets. When emergencies like the sudden need of the Army for more nylon or more blanketing materials come along . . . it means more and more used fats are needed to meet the extra drain.

That's why every American housewife must save used fats every day . . . even in the smallest amounts. Remember, 1 pound of used fats helps supply medicines for a military-hospital bed for 12 days. And 4½ tons of used fats are needed to make the synthetic-rubber equipment of a battleship. So, keep saving every drop. When the salvage can is full, turn it in and get 2 red points a pound. Keep on with this part of the fighting job that's up to you. Approved by OPA and WFA. Paid for by Industry.

WE MUST SAVE MORE USED FATS!
